25 MILLION POPULATION GROWTH SEEN

Marin Should Hit 370,000 By July, 1975

Nearly 25 million people in California and nearly 370,000 in Marin by 1975 were forecast yesterday by the California State Finance Department.

The department, which has generally been accurate in its population forecasts, released a prediction of 18,754,000 in California in 1965.

Marin's population in 1965 will reach 198,900, said the forecast. By 1970 it will pass the quarter-million mark to total 269,100, and in 1975 will reach 368,800.

The Los Angeles-Long Beach metropolitan area will soar to 9,934,000 by July 1, 1975, the department forecast.

THIRD, FOURTH

Orange and Alameda counties are expected to become the third and fourth counties to reach the one million population mark, and Santa Clara the fifth.

July 1, 1965 estimates are for 1,085,700 in Orange County and 1,016,200 in Alameda. Santa Clara should achieve 1,088,200 by July 1, 1970. Only Los Angeles and San Diego counties now top the million figure.

The department's financial and population research section, which estimated the state's population at 15,860,000 in July 1960, predicated a statewide total of 21,690,000 by 1970 and 24,816,000 by 1975. The 1970 and 1975 figures are slightly lower than earlier estimates.

LITTLE CHANGE

The department forecast little change in San Francisco's population, with a gain of less than 8,000 to a total of 750,000 by 1965, and no further increase after that.

All other Bay Area counties will continue their population upsurge, however, the department believes. It forecast them as follows:

Alameda—1,016,200 in 1965; 1,136,000 in 1970, and 1,270,000 in 1975.

Contra Costa — 507,400 in 1965; 622,200 in 1970, and 762,200 in 1975.

San Mateo—546,700 in 1965; 644,900 in 1970, and 744,000 in 1975.

Santa Clara — 874,400 in 1965; 1,088,200 in 1970, and 1,295,400 in 1975.

Solano — 159,300 in 1965; 187,400 in 1970, and 221,000 in 1975.

Sonoma — 178,900 in 1965; 216,000 in 1970, and 260,700 in 1975.

Terra Lindan Dies In Highway Crash

1st Marin Fatality Of Year

A 47-year-old Terra Linda father of two, driving on the wrong side of Highway 101 early today, died in the wreckage of three cars when his car plowed headon into another in the dense fog near the north city limits of San Rafael.

George Mason Anderson of 284 Orris Terrace, a waiter at the Mark Hopkins Hotel in San Francisco, was driving a 1961 Buick north in the southbound lane when his car smashed into a 1960 Corvette driven by James Edward Rotary, 25, of 419 Shoreline Highway in Tamalpais Valley.

A third southbound car, a 1961 Thunderbird driven by Frederick P. Schwab, 25, of 137 Bungalow Avenue in San Rafael, plowed into the wreckage about one quarter of a mile south of Puerto Suello Hill.

The cars were a tangled mass of wreckage, strewing the highway with grotesque, twisted metal and machinery. The impact of the first two cars caused the Corvette to literally climb on top of the death car, crushing its front end before landing again on four wheels. The Thunderbird, unable to swerve in time to avoid the wreckage, rolled over the Corvette, coming to rest astride its hood.

Rotary, a builder, suffered a concussion, a broken left knee and was badly cut and bruised. Attendants at Marin General

Pitbull Owners Tell Their Side Of Story

By CARLETON WILLIAMS

Three members of the Sequeira family yesterday told their side of the Marinwood pitbull story.

The three, two testifying through an interpreter, declared they were innocent of ever having caused two animals to fight, either for profit or pleasure.

Joseph Sequeira, rancher of 200 Miller Creek Road, and patriarch of the pioneer Marin clan, said, in effect, that he knew nothing.

The elder Sequeira, along with his son, George, 21, and nephew, Clem, 23, are on trial on a variety of charges involving cruelty to animals, primarily fighting Staffordshire terriers (pitbulls) and feeding stray dogs to their fighters as "sparring partners."

Also testifying as defense witnesses were Clem and Jose Bernard Sequeira, another nephew of Joseph in the United States on a visa from Portugal and a milker at the Sequeira cattle ranch in Petaluma.

All backed the contention of defense attorney William O. Weissich who, in his opening statement to the jury of seven women and five men, said the Sequeira boys worked hard to train their nine pitbulls as hunters, not fighters.

His clients did not, as charged by the prosecution, pick up stray dogs and throw them into the pit with their killers to be mutilated as part of their training, Weissich said.

Interpreting for Jose and Joseph was another member of the family, Reuben Sequeira, 21, of Petaluma, brother of Clem and cousin of George. Deputy Dist. Atty. P. Roy Val-

The president's father and former ambassador to the Court of St. James, maintains a winter home in nearby Palm Beach. He entered the hospital last Dec. 19 after suffering a stroke.

Burning Of Christmas Trees In Marin Tonight

There'll be burning of the Christmas trees tonight in observance of "the 12th Night of Christmas."

The tree burning will be staged in Corte Madera, Ross, Belvedere and Marinwood tonight. The traditional ceremony will be a day late in San Rafael, the program being scheduled for tomorrow.

The ceremony is part of the observance of Epiphany, which traditionally is the anniversary of the visit of three kings of the Orient to Bethlehem with gifts for the Christ child.

Earliest yule tree burning was scheduled at 4:30 p.m. today outside Holy Innocents Episcopal Church in Corte Madera, with a Nativity pageant and musical program to accompany and candlelight services by St. David's Guild to follow.

The traditional burning of the green on Ross Common is scheduled for 8 p.m. by St. John's Episcopal Church, with a service of the lights in the church to precede it, beginning at 7:30.

In Belvedere, a community Christmas tree burning will begin at 8 p.m. at the post office corner, sponsored by the Belvedere Recreation Commission. City Councilman Ida M. Scott will speak. E. Allen Steinau, recreation commission chairman, will be in charge of the program, with the Belvedere Fire Department standing by.

In Marinwood, burning of the trees will be sponsored by Boy Scout Troops 64 and 74 at the Marinwood Pony League field. This is the first time for the observance in Marinwood, which the scouts hope will become an annual event.

The Methodist Church of San Rafael will observe the Epiphany with a bonfire of Christmas trees at 6 p.m. tomorrow at the church parking lot at 9 Ross Valley Drive.

Epiphany will be observed in another manner at Christ the Victor Lutheran Church in Fairfax this evening. A festival of song is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m., with adult and junior choirs participating, Lois LeRud of San Rafael playing an organ solo, and her father, Clifford LeRud, singing "Birthday of a King."

Rusk, Clay In Talks On Berlin

WASHINGTON (AP) —Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Gen. Lucius D. Clay conferred today on the "important and potentially dangerous" Berlin situation. They then denied any policy differences between them over how to deal with the crisis.

The two men met at the State Department. Tomorrow Clay will confer with President John F. Kennedy.

Clay said the Berlin situation is "perhaps more tense than usual," with East-West talks about the fate of the city underway. But he said the morale of the West Berliners is high.

As to the possibility of some great new emergency arising, Clay said that "in Berlin we live with the possibility every day and we try to be on the alert and ready."

Clay came here yesterday amid reports he had made a strong protest to Rusk last month against instructions which would drastically limit the power of the U. S. commander in Berlin. There have been reports the commander did not have the power to take action in event of some flareup in the crisis there.

Death Leaper Called Drunk

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A University of California senior who plunged 14 stories to his death was intoxicated, Coroner Dr. Henry Turkel said Friday.

Turkel said the victim, Bradley S. Roberts, 25 of Berkeley, had been having difficulties with his 23-year-old wife.

"He was really drunk. He was not dead drunk but he was very intoxicated," Turkel said.

Homicide Inspector Ralph McConald said he was satisfied that Roberts' 180-foot plunge from the Fairmont Towers Thursday was a suicide.

Pressure On Laos Princes

GENEVA (AP) — The big powers put new pressure on the three fueding princes of Laos, today to get together for another try at forming a coalition government in that Southeast Asia kingdom.

Western diplomats here and in Vientiane tended to discount claims of the Royal Laotian government that the Communists had launched a big offensive leading to a flareup of fighting on a wide scale.

The 14-nation conference trying to neutralize Laos decided yesterday to invite neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma, pro-Western Prince Boun Oum and pro-Communist Souphanouvong to Geneva to settle their differences.

Representatives of the three princes here expressed approval of the idea of summit talks, which have the support of the Soviet Union and Red China as well as the western powers.

In formally issuing the invitation today, British Foreign Secretary Lord Home and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko warned the three political princes that failure to form a government and send a unified delegation to Geneva threatened to wreck the conference on Laos.

Baptismal Drowning

GREENTOWN, Ind. (AP) — The 16-month-old son of a church custodian accidentally drowned last night in a baptismal pool.

The body of Bradley Dean Foland was found in the shallow pool, three miles southwest of this north central Indiana town.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Foland, and three brothers were cleaning up after a workman when the brothers discovered the body.

John Jr. Walking

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — John F. Kennedy Jr., the president's 13-month-old son, has graduated from the crawling class and taken up toddling as a means of getting around.

John Jr. walked unaided yesterday at West Palm Beach after riding to the airport to see his father off for Washington.

Mrs. Kennedy, 4-year-old Caroline and John Jr., rode with the president to the edge of the airport. Then Mrs. Kennedy and the children got out of the presidential car and into another automobile.

John Jr. walked without assistance between the two cars.

Crosby Doing Fine

SANTA MONICA (AP) — Bing Crosby's doctor says the 57-year-old crooner is doing fine after a two-hour, 20-minute operation for removal of two kidney stones.

The surgery yesterday was the third such operation performed on Crosby. The others were in 1952 and 1955.

Dr. Frederick Schlumberger denied a report that the operation was necessary because of a passed kidney stones—"the stones just shifted position," he said.

"It's an operation that becomes increasingly difficult every time." He said Crosby has a tendency toward kidney stones.

Reds Ask Dismissal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Communist Party has asked dismissal of an indictment charging it with failure to register as an agent of the Soviet Union.

The indictment was returned here last month by a federal grand jury after the party ignored a deadline for registering with the government. The registration requirements were part of the Internal Security Act of 1950, upheld last year by the Supreme Court.

The party filed its motion seeking a dismissal in Federal District Court yesterday.

Communist Party officers and members who refused to comply with the registration provisions on the ground to do so would have the way opened for prosecution under the Smith Act. That law makes it a crime to be a member of a party advocating violent overthrow of the government.

Border Guards Fire

BERLIN (AP) — East German border guards fired at and caught a fleeing East German only about 10 yards from the West last night. Three East German guards spotted the man in open country near the West Berlin suburb of Rudow. The man turned back after several shots were fired.

Macmillan Ailing

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan was in bed with a bad cold today but aides said he was expected to be well enough to go to Bonn next Tuesday for talks with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Aid For Motorists

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state has offered help to motorists who aren't able to renew their vehicle registrations Mondays through Fridays.

All permanent field offices of the Department of Motor Vehicles will be open from 8 a.m. to noon Saturdays from today through Feb. 3.

Peace Movement

BERKELEY (AP) — A group of University of California faculty members, including a Nobel Prize winner, have banded together to work for what they call a realistic, gradual end to the nuclear arms race.

Amitai Etzioni, a sociology professor is the spokesman for the Berkeley Council for the Gradualist Way to Peace.

The council's executive committee, which includes Owen Chamberlain, a Nobel Prize-winning physicist, said in a statement yesterday: "No nation's security need be undermined nor its ultimate values sacrificed for peace to be gained and maintained.

"The gradualist approach advocates a synchronized treatment of the cold war, the arms race and the interbloc conflicts."

Nehru Blows Top, Shouts At Admirers

PATNA, India (AP) — Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru raised his fist and shouted in anger yesterday at thousands of admirers who gate-crashed a convention of the Congress party and broke up the meeting.

The 72-year-old prime minister had to be restrained forcibly from jumping into the surging crowd—estimated by police at up to a million—in his demand for order.

An Indian news agency said Nehru showered blows on security guards who held him back and literally threw two attendants from the platform.

Nehru himself escaped unhurt but 25 persons were injured in the mob demonstration, two critically.

Twelve persons were arrested, one man with a dagger. But police said the crowd was made up of admirers of the Indian leader who stampeded only to get a closer look at him.

Nehru left in a huff after addressing the convention. He brushed aside British and American criticism of India's seizure of Portuguese Goa.

For the first time he claimed the seizure of the territory was partly to prevent the enclave on India's west coast from becoming a North Atlantic Treaty Organization base. Portugal is a member of NATO.

India Assailed

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — President Ayub Khan of Pakistan says India's seizure of Goa has exposed its "designs to grab and devour" surrounding nations and extend Hindu culture to them.

Tornado Hits Florida; Child Dead, Many Hurt

CRESTVIEW, Fla. (AP)—Rescue workers toiling around the clock sifted through the wreckage of a tornado-stricken city today in a grim search for dead and injured.

Only one victim, a 6-month-old girl, was known to have perished in the twister that spun out of a squall line like a yo-yo and tore a three-mile long zig-zag path through this western Florida panhandle community.

But Capt. J. W. Jourdan, directing a highway patrol emergency team, said, "There's a possibility a lot of dead people will show up" in the flattened debris of the more than 300 homes damaged by the storm.

Approximately 63 persons were injured—five of them serious enough for hospitalization—and an estimated 1,500 were left homeless by the deadly funnel, which apparently dipped to the ground three times.

The Pensacola Journal said 50 house trailers also were destroyed.

But Jourdan said there was "no refugee problem;" that many of those whose homes were wrecked moved in with friends or relatives.

A series of squall lines blowing across the lower half of the Gulf coastal states spawned the tornado, which pounded Crestview and other cities. Slight property damage was reported at Destin and Paxton, Fla., and at Glenwood, Ala.

Crestview officials estimated the property loss here alone at one million dollars or more. State troopers and other officers stood guard through the night to prevent looting.

Sightseers jammed the farming and livestock center in the wake of the storm, paralyzing traffic and hampering rescue work.

Jourdan said, "Brick home after brick home has been blown flat" by the terrific force of the wind.

The dead child was Donna Joyce Johnson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Johnson. A falling wall in their brick veneer home crushed the child to death.

Lt. J. N. Livingston of the highway patrol said his 14-year-old son, Tommy, was practicing basketball at school when the storm struck. He said the coach ordered the boys to lie flat on the floor. They escaped injury although many windows in the school were shattered.

Gov. Farris Bryant at Tallahasse ordered a 95-man National Guard unit to the stricken city, other units were sent in from Panama City.

Civilian volunteers and the Red Cross also joined the rescue efforts.

The storm struck about 5 p.m. and continued for about six minutes.

Kennedy Will Fly To Ohio Celebration

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—President John F. Kennedy flies here late today to take part in one of the gaudiest birthday celebrations the Buckeye State has seen in years.

The president's brief stay—approximately four hours—ostensibly will be to honor Ohio Gov. Michael V. DiSalle's 54th birthday at a $100-a-plate dinner.

The big rally at the Ohio fairgrounds is expected also to attract the governors of three neighboring states, members of the Democratic National Committee and some 3,000 other persons.

Kennedy will fly into a political tempest here. DiSalle has been under pressure to retract a declaration he made Oct. 20 that he would not seek re-election.

A considerable number of political observers now say the governor is awaiting word from the president concerning possible appointment to a high post in Washington — maybe even a cabinet position.

DiSalle has said he thinks the president's visit was primarily out of personal friendship. Efforts to give it extensive political overtones are not based on the facts, he contends.

The Ohio governor was one of the first big state leaders to throw his support behind Kennedy in his campaign for the presidency.

Art Exhibit At Fairfax Theater

Marin's second "art theater," the Fairfax Fine Arts Theater, has had its lobby completely remodeled to accommodate paintings and other works of art by Marin artists and sculptors.

The first artist to exhibit at the theater is Paul Romer of San Anselmo, who has six oil paintings depicting familiar Marin scenes.

Romer, who was educated in San Francisco, moved to Marin County in 1928 and is one of the founders and a past president of the Marin Society of Artists.

The exhibit will remain through January, and possibly longer, according to Mrs. Hazel Nelson, theater manager.

Federal Court Rules Against Segregation

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — A three-judge federal court has ruled unconstitutional Louisiana laws requiring segregation of bus and train terminal facilities. However the laws will stand for 10 days.

The decision yesterday was based on the court's finding that the state laws interfere with interstate commerce and deny equal protection of the law guaranteed by the 14th Amendment.

The court asked the Justice Department and the Interstate Commerce Commission to file suggestions for a decree — which the court said it would file in 10 days.

The Justice Department had filed three consolidated suits taking in Lincoln, Ouachita and Rapids parishes (counties). State judges in each of the parishes granted had injunctions that kept terminals segregated, despite an ICC order prohibiting segregated terminal facilities.

Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion indicated the state would appeal the federal ruling. The appeal would go directly to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Presiding Judge John R. Brown of the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, Houston, Tex., said Louisiana segregation laws in transportation terminals would "remain status quo until the decree is issued."

Earlier in the hearing the court dismissed Gremillion's motion to make the Louisiana Public Service Commission a party to the government suit.

New Leaflet About Diet Is Available

A new leaflet presenting facts about diet is available from the Marin County Heart Assn. in San Rafael.

Entitled, "What We Know About Diet and Heart Disease," the leaflet says that important changes in diets should be made only on medical advice.

Definitions and examples are given of the three main kinds of food fats: saturated, mono-unsaturated and poly unsaturated.

The leaflet also provides an up-to-date summary of knowledge concerning sodium restriction and overweight in relation to heart disease.

Also available through its community service program at the Marin County Heart Assn. in San Rafael is nutrition consultation on Tuesdays between noon and 4 p.m., upon physician referral for those patients in need of low sodium, diabetic, low cholesterol, bland, low residue and other diets.

Not On Supervisor Agenda, But Bruce Has Top Billing

County Administrator Alan Bruce's position will get top billing at the Monday afternoon meeting of the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

But it will be by grace of Chairman Walter R. Castro, who said today he will so order despite failure of the question to show up in the weekly agenda prepared yesterday afternoon by the county clerk's office.

Supervisor Peter Behr directed last week that the agenda schedule give consideration of four points about the administrator. Asked today whether he'd changed his mind he said "Decidedly not!" but indicated that due to failure to follow the instruction, choice of time would be up to Castro.

Castro said he understood Behr wanted the administrator issue to receive first consideration and that was what would happen.

"Mr. Behr's wish will be respected, regardless of the printed agenda," Castro said.

Behr plans a package deal to rehabilitate the office in which Bruce clearly can't function to much effect. First it is proposed to rescind the ordinance of last May 24 which sought to abolish the job. That would take the issue off next June's ballot and make it possible for Bruce to recruit a competent analyst and other staff.

Behr also wants to get Bruce and staff out of "Cell 300" in the court house, though advantage won't be taken of the earlier offer of free quarters in his former suite at 1000 Fifth Avenue.

Bruce's present duties as set by ex-Chairman William D. Fusselman allot only 20 per cent of his time to the administratorship. That is due for change. Finally the administrator's salary will be considered in view of adjustments of others on the "equity list."

Action on the equity list, agreed to by the board last Tuesday on Behr's insistence, should come with consideration of the final item on the board's Monday agenda—a communication from the office of the auditor - controller providing machinery for the adjustments along with pertinent information.

Though subject to possible change under the newly regained chairmanship of Castro, who formerly favored a single all-day weekly session, the board will meet next week at 2 p.m. Monday with communications as its main business listed on the agenda.

One letter from the Point Reyes National Seashore Foundation requests fresh discussion of the board's position against a 53,000-acre national seashore, due to come up shortly in congress.

Tuesday's session will start at 1 p.m. and includes a request by Brigham for transfer of $5,000 from the Paradise Park pier repair to putting Muir Beach Overlook in condition for the public. The planning department will also report on this.

Golden Gate Toll Captain Is Named

Edward R. Moore of San Francisco has been named captain of the Golden Gate Bridge toll collectors, succeeding the late Raymond T. Logan.

Appointment of Moore sparked several other promotions within the collector group. Everett Jennings of Sausalito, recently promoted to lieutenant, was joined in that rank by John Center of San Francisco. Succeeding Center as sergeant is Jack A. Murray of 32 Southwood Avenue, Ross.

Soviet Steel Up

NEW YORK (UPI)—Steel output in Russia is expected to set a record this year. Western observers estimate 1961 Soviet tonnage at 78 million tons, six million over 1960. Plans call for expanding this to 100 million tons by 1965. U. S. output this year likely will be below the 99.3 million tons in 1960.

Action Expected On County Pay Boosts

Documents were submitted by the office of the county auditor-controller yesterday to county clerk's office through which the county supervisors are expected next week to grant "equity increases" to about one-seventh of all county employees.

The exact total worked out to 104 employees in 19 departments, according to Asst. Auditor Michael Mitchell.

Four will go up 15 per cent, 20 will get 10 per cent boosts and the remaining 80 will be increased 5 per cent, Mitchell said.

The greatest number of increases go to the sheriff's department, welfare, juvenile hall, health and communications, with 10 or more in each, according to Mitchell.

Cost for the remainder of the present fiscal year worked out at $23,616, including $2,510 applicable to fringe benefits, it was figured.

But the present projected salary savings for the year total $39,363 so it will be possible to correct the inequities—first reported last June but not acted upon by county supervisors — and return $15,747 to the unappropriated reserve fund, according to Mitchell.

Mitchell said that the major reasons why the county has money on hand to adjust the inequities in certain salaries, as compared with pay for comparable positions elsewhere, are twofold.

First, the longevity increases put through by the supervisors were made effective Oct. 1 instead of July 1 as initially planned.

Second, there are several unfilled vacancies, including the position of analyst to work under the county administrator, and the job of collector with clerical employees.

NEW TRINITY CHURCH—This new structure is the Trinity Lutheran Church of San Rafael at Woodland Avenue near B Street. It is built in the form of a Greek cross and its altar will be in the center of the sanctuary rather than at one end. The old church is at 1415 Fifth Avenue. Pastor Fred C. Braunschweiger said the new church should be ready next month. Chairman of the building committee is Charles Van Dyke, and president of the church's board of directors is Jack Craemer. (Independent-Journal photo)

San Rafael Parish Has New, Yet Old Building Design

By PAUL MILLER

The church's floor plan is in the form of a Greek cross.

This is the outstanding characteristic of the new Trinity Lutheran Church being constructed on 4.7 acres on Woodland Avenue near B Street in San Rafael. Additional deviations from orthodox plans include an altar in the center of the sanctuary, seating areas that extend in the four arms of the cross and allow worshipers to face the altar with none sitting more than five pews away from the center of worship.

There are also soundproof rooms immediately off the sanctuary which will allow late comers, and those who have had to leave the service unexpectedly, to return, listen, but not disturb.

The church's architect, Donald Powers Smith of San Francisco, who has designed 50 churches in California, including the Redwood Presbyterian Church in Larkspur, feels that the most significant concept of the Trinity Church design ironically is in its "traditional form." That is that the concept of the plan of the whole church is worshipers gathering around the altar.

The earliest Christians started this type of worship when they met to celebrate Holy Communion which in the first few centuries after the Resurrection of Jesus Christ was literally a worship and eating situation. Later, when the center of Christendom was in Constantinople, the Greek cross design emerged. But now Greek Orthodox altars are located at one end of sanctuaries and screened off.

It has only been within the last year that the center plan has been re-awakened by architects. For example, of the half a hundred churches that Smith has done, Trinity is the only one with the cross plan.

Trinity's other characteristics are an "amplification of the basic theme of people gathered about a communion table," to use Smith's words. For example, the church roof is gabled, a triangular wall from eaves to roof. There are four openings of glass at the base of a spiral that rises 50 feet above the central altar and is topped with a 20-foot cross. The glass openings admit a natural shaft of light which falls across the altar to create a mood of reverence.

The church is described architecturally as a monolithic concrete structure," but also includes much glass and natural redwood ceilings in its makeup.

For critics who feel the design is too radical from late traditional long aisles with an altar at the end, Rev. Fred C. Braunschweiger, Trinity's pastor, points out that the new design "has been confirmed innumerable times by others who seek an appropriate setting for worship. An example in support of the pastor's statement is Christ Chapel of the Episcopal Academy in Overbrook, Penn. It is also designed within the Greek cross plan, and for this won the 1960 award of excellence of the American Institute of Architects.

The bulletin from the Lutheran Society of Worship, Music and Arts, expressed a similar opinion: "Lutheran churches should most appropriately be one space or unicameral in form. The act of corporate worship suggests an architectural arrangement that enables the worshipper to realize his role as a member of the Body of Christ, and emphasizes the direct access of the believer to the means of Grace."

The Trinity congregation which has pioneered in Marin with this type of structure in which to worship, acted to elevate a criticism of church architecture that was potently expressed by Dr. Theophilus M. Taylor, former moderator of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. and a graduate architect.

To 1961's National Conference on church architecture in Pittsburgh, Dr. Taylor said that America is pockmarked with churches that look like post offices, state capitols, railway stations and theaters.

"A church," he asserted, "should look like a church rather than a super-market with a cross added. It should be pleasing and attractive, but should acknowledge traditions without being archaic; should be functional without being merely a religious factory, and should be substantial and stable without being permanent."

NEW TRINITY CHURCH—This new structure is the Trinity Lutheran Church of San Rafael at Woodland Avenue near B Street. It is built in the form of a Greek cross and its altar will be in the center of the sanctuary rather than at one end. The old church is at 1415 Fifth Avenue. Pastor Fred C. Braunschweiger said the new church should be ready next month. Chairman of the building committee is Charles Van Dyke, and president of the church's board of directors is Jack Craemer. # San Rafael Parish Has New, Yet Old Building Design

The church's floor plan is in the form of a Greek cross.

This is the outstanding characteristic of the new Trinity Lutheran Church being constructed on 4.7 acres on Woodland Avenue near B Street in San Rafael. Additional deviations from orthodox plans include an altar in the center of the sanctuary, seating areas that extend in the four arms of the cross and allow worshipers to face the altar with none sitting more than five pews away from the center of worship.

There are also soundproof rooms immediately off the sanctuary which will allow late comers, and those who have had to leave the service unexpectedly, to return, listen, but not disturb.

The church's architect, Donald Powers Smith of San Francisco, who has designed 50 churches in California, including the Redwood Presbyterian Church in Larkspur, feels that the most significant concept of the Trinity Church design ironically is in its "traditional form." That is that the concept of the plan of the whole church is worshipers gathering around the altar.

The earliest Christians started this type of worship when they met to celebrate Holy Communion which in the first few centuries after the Resurrection of Jesus Christ was literally a worship and eating situation. Later, when the center of Christendom was in Constantinople, the Greek cross design emerged. But now Greek Orthodox altars are located at one end of sanctuaries and screened off.

It has only been within the last year that the center plan has been re-awakened by architects. For example, of the half a hundred churches that Smith has done, Trinity is the only one with the cross plan.

Trinity's other characteristics are an "amplification of the basic theme of people gathered about a communion table," to use Smith's words. For example, the church roof is gabled, a triangular wall from eaves to roof. There are four openings of glass at the base of a spiral that rises 50 feet above the central altar and is topped with a 20-foot cross. The glass openings admit a natural shaft of light which falls across the altar to create a mood of reverence.

The church is described architecturally as a monolithic concrete structure," but also includes much glass and natural redwood ceilings in its makeup.

For critics who feel the design is too radical from late traditional long aisles with an altar at the end, Rev. Fred C. Braunschweiger, Trinity's pastor, points out that the new design "has been confirmed innumerable times by others who seek an appropriate setting for worship. An example in support of the pastor's statement is Christ Chapel of the Episcopal Academy in Overbrook, Penn. It is also designed within the Greek cross plan, and for this won the 1960 award of excellence of the American Institute of Architects.

The bulletin from the Lutheran Society of Worship, Music and Arts, expressed a similar opinion: "Lutheran churches should most appropriately be one space or unicameral in form. The act of corporate worship suggests an architectural arrangement that enables the worshipper to realize his role as a member of the Body of Christ, and emphasizes the direct access of the believer to the means of Grace."

The Trinity congregation which has pioneered in Marin with this type of structure in which to worship, acted to elevate a criticism of church architecture that was potently expressed by Dr. Theophilus M. Taylor, former moderator of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. and a graduate architect.

To 1961's National Conference on church architecture in Pittsburgh, Dr. Taylor said that America is pockmarked with churches that look like post offices, state capitols, railway stations and theaters.

"A church," he asserted, "should look like a church rather than a super-market with a cross added. It should be pleasing and attractive, but should acknowledge traditions without being archaic; should be functional without being merely a religious factory, and should be substantial and stable without being permanent."

Sausalito Student Home From Holiday Tour In Holy Land

Alice Churchill, daughter of the John Churchills of Sausalito, has just returned home and is telling her friends of her very unusual way of spending the holidays.

Among the highlights were attending Christmas eve services in the chuch of Shepherds Field and the Church of the Nativity, both in Bethlehem, and celebrating New Year's Eve at a restaurant-night club in Athens.

Alice, who is in her sophomore year at San Francisco City College majoring in merchandising, left for New York on Dec. 14 with a tour party of 46 students and other people.

After visiting London they flew to Beirut and started the tour by car that took them to Damascus and Jerusalem and Cairo, where they took a train to Luxor to see its famed tombs of the kings.

They then flew to Istanbul and on to Greece. New Year's Eve in Athens, she reports, is celebrated much as it is in this country except that people exchange gifts then instead of on Christmas.

Her favorite places were Beirut, Athens and Cairo.

"Beirut reminded me of San Francisco," she said, "and the people were very friendly.

"In Athens I was impressed with the lovely countryside and the Aegean Islands and the shops in Athens, which were open until midnight on New Year's Eve.

"I thought Cairo was a very beautiful city, and because I am so much interested in ancient history, I found the pyramids and sphinx especially fascinating."

The return trip was made by plane via London and New York.

GOALBY'S 64 LEADS L.A. OPEN

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Big Bob Goalby led the way into the second round of the $45,000 Los Angeles Open Golf tournament today in better shape than he did a year ago.

The 30-year-old bachelor from Crystal River, Fla., did not make his move to win this rich event—which he did—until the final round last year.

But today he held a lead of three strokes over his nearest challengers, Doug Sanders, Phil Rodgers, Tommy Jacobs and Bob Keller. He had a blistering 64, seven strokes under par, in yesterday's first round.

Four shots back were such tournament-wise foes as Lionel Hebert, Fred Hawkins and Gay Brewer.

Goalby could breathe perhaps a little easier, because the two pre-tournament hotshots, Gary Player and Arnold Palmer, were well back in the 73 bracket.

PAR BUSTERS

Forty players equalled or broke par 36-35—71 in the initial round over the Rancho Golf Club's 7,000-yard course.

Palmer actually was better off than he was last year at this stage. He took a fat 78, which included 12 strokes on the ninth hole.

Player, South Africa's pride, was not too disappointed with his 73.

U.S. Open Champion Gene Littler, a past winner here, got into contention with a 69, while the national PGA champion, Jerry Barber, took 77 blows to get around the course.

San Rafael Wins League Opener

San Rafael Bulldogs—even with their offensive star Rod Monti on the bench—rebounded last night against Marin County Athletic League defending basketball champion Redwood High, 40-37.

Redwood licked the Bulldogs last month in the MCAL tournament, but in a league opener last night it was San Rafael's turn. The Bulldogs dominated from the outset with the score 9-7 in the first period, 22-15 at the halftime and 31-23 in the third quarter.

Only in the last 50 seconds did coach Dick Hart's Giants move ahead. It was by a point. But San Rafael deadliness from the charity line in the final period made the difference. The Bulldogs for the game hit 14 out of 29 FT attempts. Redwood had 7 for 19. In other statistics, the Bulldogs rolled up a 32 per cent count in field goal shots, Redwood a fair 23 per cent for prep ball.

Hart had put much confidence in man-to-man defense and the Bulldogs' coach Mike Diaz stuck by his zone defense.

Jack Haney, Bruce MacPhail and Jack Sovereign filled Monti's gap adequately on offense for San Rafael. Monti was benched with an injured ankle. Haney paced the Bulldogs with 13 points and Sovereign and MacPhail each chalked 10. Haney scored five field goals and the other two players hit from the FT line.

Redwood star guard Jay Johnson fell short of his near-20 per game average, but nevertheless paced the game with 15 points, on five field goals and five free throws. Top rebounder Pete Coy for the Giants helped supplement Johnson's off-night by scoring 11 points mostly on field goals. Rick Skinner for the Giants continues to add depth to the relatively inexperienced team. Last night he hit three field goals for six counts.

The varsity game, watched by an estimated 2,000 fans at the Larkspur gym, was preceded by the B contest, also won by San Rafael 31-25.

VARSITY SCORERS

More Football Action For TV Fans Tomorrow

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Think the five postseason games over the current weekend finally spell finis to the football season?

The real, honest-to-goodness, guaranteed end doesn't come until Jan. 14 when the National Football League's Eastern and Western All-Stars do battle in Los Angeles.

The American Football League is beating the NFL to its All-Star game by a week. The AFL East-West stars meet in San Diego tomorrow starting at 12:30 p.m. PST—ABC-TV.

The other two games on tomorrow's schedule are the U.S. Bowl at Washington, D.C. (NBC-TV, 11 a.m., PST) and the Hula Bowl in Honolulu.

The East squad, headed by George Blanda of Houston and Al Dorow of New York, probably will rule the slight favorite over the West in the AFL All-Star game. Jack Kemp of San Diego and Cotton Davidson of Dallas are the mainstays of the West.

Actually, the game shapes up pretty much of a replay of the championship game in which Houston defeated San Diego. Both the squads are crammed with players from the divisional winners.

The U.S. Bowl also is an East-West affair. Only in this one the players are the draft choices of the two sections of the National Football League.

There is loads of quality on the two teams, but the coaches, Bill McPeak of the East and Red Hickey of the West, agreed that they would depend pretty much on passing because they haven't had the time to get a good running offensive organized.

This is a new post-season game and will be played in Washington's new 50,000-seat stadium.

Marin Loses To USF Golds; League Next

Their rugged practice schedule completed, College of Marin's Tars set their sights next on the equally strenuous Golden Valley Conference championship basketball race starting next weekend.

Last night the men of Marin lost to the University of San Francisco Golds, 90-71 at Novato High School's gymnasium. Next Friday they open defense of their GVC title against the new Siskiyous College at Weed, near the Oregon border.

Of last night's performance, Riemcke said "We seemed kind of flat and weren't hitting well." Marin connected on only 26 per cent of its floor shots as compared to its usual 35 per cent accuracy. USF, meanwhile, was swishing buckets through at a 47 per cent rate.

HALFTIME BULGE

The Golds, composed of second and third string varsity players, led throughout and had a 40-28 halftime bulge. Marin pulled to within six points in the second half, but that was as close as the Tars could move.

Lynn Livie led Marin with 16 points. Other top scorers were Randy Petrini and Dave Neumann with 11 each, Bill Wallace with 10 and Mike Kavanagh with 9. Riemcke used all 14 of his varsity players.

Marin completed its pre-season schedule with a record of seven victories and eight losses.

NEW ARMY COACH

Dietzel Returns To Banks Of The Hudson

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Paul Dietzel—who left the banks of the Hudson River seven years ago to become one of football's most glamorous coaches on the banks of the Mississippi at Louisiana State—returns to West Point today to become Army's head football coach.

"Deep in my heart, I have always wanted to be head coach at West Point," said Dietzel yesterday.

The 37-year-old coach, once a butcher's helper in his native Ohio, won release of his contract at LSU yesterday. The pact, which called for $18,500 annually, had four years remaining.

Already speculation is rising over his successor.

Top contender for the job appears to be Charles McClendon, a Dietzel assistant who was interviewed yesterday for the vacant coaching post at his alma mater—Kentucky.

Dietzel said he recommended McClendon for the Kentucky job and "I think he will be head coach either at LSU or Kentucky."

Dietzel takes four of his assistants to West Point, where he reportedly will sign a five-year contract at $20,000 a year. He will replace Dale Hall, whom Army dismissed at the end of the regular season after the Cadets lost their third straight game to arch-rival Navy.

The four assistants going with Dietzel are defensive line coaches George Terry and Larry Charles and offensive aides Charles Peevy and Bill Shalowsky.

Saints First Game Changed; Is Tonight

CLEVELAND (AP)—San Francisco's Saints open a two-game American Basketball League series tonight against the Cleveland Pipers.

Originally the two games were scheduled for last night and tonight, but the first game was switched to Sunday afternoon.

Ski Enthusiasm High In Marin This Season

Marin County ski shops report enthusiasm for the sport is higher than ever among Marinites this season.

During the recent holidays the county's ski shops rented all their ski equipment, could have rented more, and sales were up.

"I would say it's definitely better than past years . . . more people are becoming interested in the sport each year," said James Perkins, manager of Dawson's in San Rafael. He added that a lot of people who last year rented, this year have bought their own gear.

Nancy and Allan Loeffler, owners and operators of Battens and Boards Inc. in Sausalito, report that their year-old business has doubled this season and that skiing seems to have turned into a family sport for Marinites.

The San Rafael Ski Shop reports good business and is preparing for its annual ski race next month which is open to any Marin high school or college skiers, said shop owner Stan Goldsmith. The shop also presents snow reports Friday's over Radio KTIM 11:55 a.m. and at 3:55 p.m.

Bob Dixon, member of the Marin Ski Club, said the club's new lodge has been packed with some 40 members every weekend this season. The lodge is an A-frame structure built over the period of three years by members at Soda Springs near Sugar Bowl (see story in today's I-J Marin Magazine). Next month the club has scheduled a trip to Aspen, Col. and in March a trip to Shasta.

Marin shop owners and ski club members agree generally on skiing conditions having been better at the beginning of the season than they are now, but all feel that this season will be one of the most populated with new skiers as well as old, if the weather is right.

Conditions this week indicate that all areas will be open, but skiing will not be good everywhere. Some of the best areas to date are Shasta, Alpine Meadows, Sugar Bowl, Mammouth, Dodge Ridge.

Slam-Bang Contest Between S.F., L.A. Will Be Tonight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco's Seals and the Los Angeles Blades will meet in another of their slam-bang affairs in a Western Hockey League rematch tonight.

The two squads, battling to stay clear of last place in the loop's Southern Division, fought to a-1-1 tie in overtime last night. Each team had previously defeated the other four times.

Eight penalties were called in the second period and the Seals' third highest scorer, Duke Edmundson, broke a bone in his hand in a fist fight with Ralph Keller, Los Angeles captain. Edmundson is expected to play tonight with a cast.

San Francisco tied the game in the third period on Ken Girard's 15-foot shot after Real Chevrefils put the Blades ahead with a 10-foot goal in the opening period.

SAFETY MEASURES

Elbows 'Amputated' From High School Grid Rules

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Six rules changes, four designed to stop use of the elbow, have been voted by the National Alliance Football Rules Committee, worried by the rise in high school football deaths.

Fifteen prep football deaths directly attributed to contact in games or scrimmages occurred last fall, compared with seven in 1960.

The National Alliance rulesmakers said they believe it was merely an unusual year, a decrease is likely next fall and, in any event, equipment wasn't a factor.

Delegates represented 14,000 football-playing high schools and 400 small colleges and junior colleges.

Clifford B. Fagan, executive secretary of the alliance, said the rulesmakers believe reduced use of the elbow, cutting down rough play in general and living up to the spirit of the rules will bring the death figure down.

The rules changes:

1. Hands may not be locked together by defensive players in contact. The hands must be separated. Blows with locked hands have produced injuries.

2. Hands and forearms of defensive players must be in advance of the elbow in making contact. This rules out the defender elbowing his opponent in the ribs to break through and stop a play.

3. The elbow of the offensive players can't move faster than the body. This eliminates the swinging or snapped elbow, now common in pass protection. Officials formerly could interpret this as an infraction or not, as they saw fit. Now they must call an infraction.

4. Offensive players must not use the hands and arms in blocking a defender above the shoulder — designed to stop blocks which catch the defender's face protector, snapping his head back.

5. The tooth protector, already voted last year to be mandatory in 1962, was liberalized to make a wide variety acceptable, encouraging research.

6. Any state may experiment with the 2-inch kicking tee, designed to encourage field goal attempts. The tee now elevates the football one inch.

Hub Semi-Pros To Play In S.F.

The San Anselmo Merchants will seek their ninth straight San Francisco AAA semi-professional baseball league win tomorrow against the Franciscans at 2 p.m. at Funston Field on the Marina in San Francisco.

Hub manager Pete Maggi announced that Nino Geminiani, recently signed by the Detroit Tigers will be the Merchants starting pitcher.

Mrs. William May Wins Indian Valley Golf

Indian Valley Women's Golf Club trophy winner at Thursday's meet was Mrs. William May with a score of 83-11—72.

Class A winners were Mesdames Arthur Sears, 95-21—74, Lynn Sumpter, 93-18—75, John Mumaw, 99-21—78. In Class B, Mrs. Joel Hamby was low with 103-27—76, Mrs. George Nolan, 102-23—79 and Mrs. Rowe Waller, 112-28—84.

Elbows 'Amputated' From High School Grid Rules

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Six rules changes, four designed to stop use of the elbow, have been voted by the National Alliance Football Rules Committee, worried by the rise in high school football deaths.

Fifteen prep football deaths directly attributed to contact in games or scrimmages occurred last fall, compared with seven in 1960.

The National Alliance rulesmakers said they believe it was merely an unusual year, a decrease is likely next fall and, in any event, equipment wasn't a factor.

Delegates represented 14,000 football-playing high schools and 400 small colleges and junior colleges.

Clifford B. Fagan, executive secretary of the alliance, said the rulesmakers believe reduced use of the elbow, cutting down rough play in general and living up to the spirit of the rules will bring the death figure down.

The rules changes:

1. Hands may not be locked together by defensive players in contact. The hands must be separated. Blows with locked hands have produced injuries.

2. Hands and forearms of defensive players must be in advance of the elbow in making contact. This rules out the defender elbowing his opponent in the ribs to break through and stop a play.

3. The elbow of the offensive players can't move faster than the body. This eliminates the swinging or snapped elbow, now common in pass protection. Officials formerly could interpret this as an infraction or not, as they saw fit. Now they must call an infraction.

4. Offensive players must not use the hands and arms in blocking a defender above the shoulder — designed to stop blocks which catch the defender's face protector, snapping his head back.

5. The tooth protector, already voted last year to be mandatory in 1962, was liberalized to make a wide variety acceptable, encouraging research.

6. Any state may experiment with the 2-inch kicking tee, designed to encourage field goal attempts. The tee now elevates the football one inch.

Marin Beats Drake, 37-33

The Marin Catholic Wildcats avenged themselves before a packed house last night at Drake High School as they defeated the Hub Pirates 37-33 in the teams' 1962 Marin County Athletic League basketball debut.

The Pirates last month whipped the Wildcats for the MCAL tournament trophy, but a stout defense by the Catholics turned the tide last night.

It was a see-saw game and stayed that way until the final seconds of the contest. At the conclusion of the first quarter, Marin led by one point, but at halftime the Pirates had a one-point edge and at the end of the third period Drake pushed it to a two-point margin.

In that final period Wildcat John Enos hit a clutch field goal and got his squad back in the ball game. It was the only bucket Enos scored, but it was significant. Enos had collected four fouls early in the game and only got back in action in that final quarter.

BIG GUNNERS

The big and effective gunners for both teams were Wildcat Jerry Smith who racked up the game's high of 19 points, and Pirate Brad Busch, who scored one less point than Smith. Jerry, one of the league's outstanding players as a 5-10 guard for Marin, hit well in both halves, but stood out most as he socked in the round ball from the outside in the first division of play.

Despite Busch's fine effort for the Pirates, coach Carl Brown said his athletes were not hitting as well or playing as well last night as they did in winning the MCAL tournament. "We were also weak from the free throw line," he added.

Catholic coach Bernie Schneider attributed the victory of his Wildcats to their improved defensive effort in last night's outing against Drake.

"In the tournament we were not getting down to defend our goal quickly enough, but last night we made Drake work for their baskets," said Schneider. Drake also defended well, but the Wildcats' accuracy from the outside made the difference.

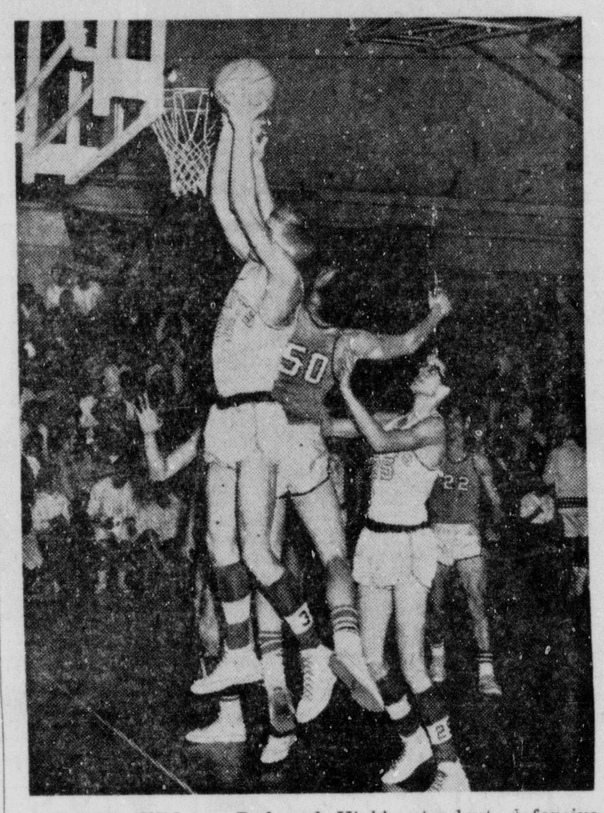

The Marin Catholic Bs, led by Bud Redding, pulled a one-point victory off over Drake 29-28.

Tamites Turn Back Novato

Novato High put up the best scrap it has in a game in a long time against the Tamalpais Indians last night in the two teams' 1962 Marin County Athletic League cage opener, but favored Tam did what it was expected to do by a score of 40-30.

The Indians got off to a slow start with their run and shoot, fast break offense. They ran and shot, but failed to hit. Novato's rebound men—Joe Colfer, Martin Baccaglio and Harry Cassidy—took advantage of this and controlled the boards until Indian Pete Bardea (6-5) entered the game in the second quarter.

In the first quarter Novato was able to lead 7-6 but Bardea started getting the rebounds for the cold Indians and Tam edged out 18-15 at the half, then easily forged ahead 32-23 in the third quarter and coasted into the 40-30 final count.

Top gun for coach Eddie Chavez' Indians was Art Ford who tallied 12 points on four field goals and four free throws. Tam manager Jerry Taylor described the 5-11 guard as "dumping in key jump shots from the base line." Thus the combination of Foster and Bardea allowed Tam to have a softer second half.

NEW GUNNER

A new gunner is emerging for the North Marin team, coached by O. T. McAtee. He is 5-10 guard Jay Bucy, who carried the offensive load for the Hornets with 11 points on four field goals and three charities. Novato's offensive depth was better last night than any time this season. Colfer (before he fouled out in the third quarter) and Nick Willard racked up six points each. Willard was the hottest from the free throw line with four baskets.

But Tam's depth has always been good. For example, defender Bardea also tallied the second highest number of points for his Indians with 10.

The Novato Bs came as close as possible in basketball to breaking the losing ice for the North Marin high school—the ice is getting thicker by the seasons—as they were edged out 39-38 in a high scoring affair for the Bs. Tam's Chris Schuepbach paced the game with 18 points.

Ortega Vs. Scott Rated Even For TV Tiff Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Gaspar Ortega follows Archie Moore's economical system of training. Instead of hiring sparring partners he just fights to get in shape and keep in top condition.

Using the "earn while you train" Moore formula, the 26-year-old welterweight contender from Mexico boxed 15 times last year, winning 12 bouts and losing 3.

With that kind of action, Ortega rarely was out of condition. So when the Garden needed a substitute fight for the postponed Sugar Ray Robinson-Denny Moyer bout, the willing Indian was available to fight Charley Scott of Philadelphia in tonight's television (ABC-TV, 10 p.m. EST) 10-rounder.

Menlo Dumps S.R. Cadets

The San Rafael Military Academy is still under the jinx of Menlo High, their arch-rivals.

Last night coach Larry Fulton's Cadets were smashed 57-39 by the Menlo squad in a Bay Counties basketball league game. Terry Hoffmann was the standout player for the Cadets scoring 17 and leading the team's rebounders. On defense for Fulton's crew, Dave Kerr also performed well.

"We were as cold as cucumbers," said the academy coach.

HOTTER THAN A HOT POTATO — Basketball looks like it's too hot to touch as Tam and Novato players approach it during a floor scramble. Hospital said he was in fair condition today.

Schwab lost several teeth and suffered severe facial injuries. He was undergoing plastic surgery at Marin General Hospital today and was described as being in fair condition.

Two witnesses said they had seen Anderson driving on the wrong side of the highway as far south as Greenbrae and tried to attract his attention by driving alongside and blowing their horns.

Thomas R. Johnson of Boyes Springs said he saw Anderson at the San Quentin Wye traveling about 50 miles per hour.

Frank Forrest of Sonoma said he first saw him at Greenbrae going from 60 to 65 miles an hour. Forrest said he saw the crash just south of Puerto Suello Hill, having pulled to the side of the road when he realized he was unable to stop Anderson.

California Highway Patrolmen Vincent C. Weimar and Charles Woodworth, who arrived at the scene shortly after 2:30 a.m., said the wreckage of the three cars was strewn for many yards along the highway.

Anderson, who was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital, was the first fatality of 1962 on Marin highways. It was also on Jan. 6 that the first two victims of highway accidents died in the county both in 1960 and 1961.

Andeson, who has lived in Marin County for about six years, is survived by his wife, Farrell, and two children, Suzan, 11, and Craig, 14. Funeral arrangements were pending today at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael.

Strawberry Might Get Swim Pool By Summer

Strawberry residents may have a swimming pool of their own this summer.

This optimistic outlook came today from James Allroggen, chairman of a group seeking a Strawberry swim club, following a mass meeting last night at Strawberry Point School.

members were signed up last night at an "enthusiastic" meeting, making a total of more than one-half the 250 members needed to build the pool. On the basis of 250 members the cost will be about $200 per member.

Allroggen said about 75 new last night agreed to allow persons outside the Strawberry

Allroggen said the group Recreation District to become club members. Members volunteering were assigned to jobs helping to promote sale of the remaining memberships.

The site for the proposed pool is on land belonging to the recreation district across Belvedere drive from Strawberry Point School.

The chairman said no further group meetings are planned, with the rest of the work to be done by personal contact.

Ex-Convict Guilty Of $160 Theft

Joe Junior Johnson, 33, an ex-convict from San Mateo County, was found guilty yesterday of stealing about $160 worth of coins from San Rafael city parking meters last November.

A Marin Superior Court jury deliberated less than 30 minutes and brought in a unanimous guilty verdict before Judge Thomas F. Keating. The judge set 10 a.m. Jan. 29 as the time to hear a probation report and to sentence Johnson.

The offense for which Johnson was convicted is petty theft in itself. However, under state law, the crime becomes a felony if committed by a person who has a previous felony record. Johnson served a San Quentin term for grand theft in San Mateo County in 1955.

He now faces a penalty ranging from a county jail term to five years in prison.

Last Nov. 24, San Rafael police arrested Johnson, who was weighted down with several bags full of coins. Meter collectors said many of the meters in the city parking lots at Fifth and C Streets and Third and Lootens Place were empty or nearly empty. Some of the meter boxes were open, and coins lay scattered on the pavement.

Assistant Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales introduced these and other circumstantial evidence to convince the jurors that Johnson was responsible.

Nurses Needed By Air Force

Graduate registered nurses are now being invited by the Air Force to take an 18-month course in anesthesia and qualify for an Air Force commission.

Sgt. Chester R. Thoren, Marin Air Force recruiter, said male or female nurses qualifying for the program will receive full pay and allowances while attending the school, according to the rank to which they are commissioned.

He said information may be obtained at the recruiting office, 819 A Street, San Rafael.

2nd Murder Trial Postponed A Month

The second murder trial for San Gabriel contractor Robert Burdette Rogers, which had been set to start next Tuesday, has been postponed a month.

Rogers, 42, accused of shooting his wife to death at the San Rafael home of her mother in August of 1959, will be tried by jury on Feb. 6. The trial is set for three weeks in Marin Superior Court.

The postponement came yesterday on the motion of attorney George T. Davis, who represents Rogers.

Rogers was convicted of second degree murder in December of 1959. During that trial, both sides entered into a stipulation that Rogers could be convicted of either manslaughter or second degree murder.

The State Supreme Court reversed the conviction last year on grounds that the stipulation denied Rogers a fair trial.

Dist. Atty. Roger P. Garety is now prepared to re-try the case, charging first degree murder. Defense attorney Davis is trying to block that trial on grounds that Rogers cannot be tried for first degree murder after an original conviction for second degree murder. This constitutes double jeopardy, says Davis.

His appeal is now pending before the state Supreme Court. Judge Keating yesterday postponed the second trial to give the Supreme Court time to act on the defense appeal.

Army Honors Two Civilians

Awards for "lifeboat type" heroism were awarded recently to two Marin employees of the Army Corps of Engineers.

Receiving $50 each for helping other employees of the San Francisco engineer district find jobs during a regional cutback were Miss Carma R. Holland of 512 Las Collindas, Terra Linda, and Mrs. Catherine M. LeBlanc of 68 Vendola Drive, Santa Venetia.

The citation reads: "Bewteen March 30 and Aug. 31, they disregarded personal self interests and, despite the fact that their own positions were in jeopardy, devoted their energy to assist job placement of many employees during transfer of military construction functions from the San Francisco to Sacramento and Los Angeles districts."

Five other district employees were similarly honored.

Mill Valleyan In Fraud Case Given 6 Months

Forrest Seter of Mill Valley was granted three years probation but with requirement that he serve six months in the county jail this week by Judge Murle C. Shreck in Sacramento Superior Court. The six months term was to start yesterday.

Motion for a new trial was denied.

Seter had been found guilty, with J. L. Levitt and Wallace Lund, both of San Francisco, of soliciting money to combat juvenile delinquency but using the money for other purposes. All were officers of California Law Enforcement Officers Assn., a group without official status.

Judge Shreck made similar rulings in cases of the other two men, linked with Seter under a conspiracy charge, but they need serve but three months each in jail.

$200,000 Suit Filed By Laborer

A Sonoma County laborer, who claims that a private detective hit him over the head with handcuffs and pointed a revolver at him in Sausalito a year ago, filed a $200,000 damage suit yesterday.

James Harvey Rider, represented by attorney Hugh G. Lawrence of Sausalito, is suing Laverne W. Furrow of Furrow Investigations and a former employee, Ernest Quintana, 22 of San Rafael.

Rider says Quintana beat and threatened him with a gun at the Pig Haven Restaurant in Sausalito on Jan. 7, 1961. Quintana at the time was a rookie member of Furrow's private investigation agency. Furrow immediately revoked Quintana's credentials.

Rider complains that Quintana struck him with steel handcuffs, pointed the gun and clicked the trigger several times.

The suit alleges that Quintana was not fitted for a police job because of his tendencies toward violence, and Furrow should have known that when he hired the man.

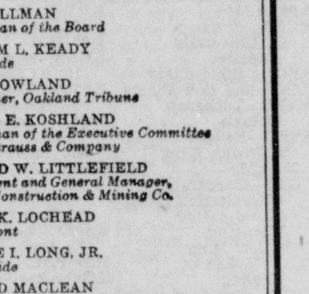

Rider contends that Quintana also arrested and held him illegally without a warrant and without any cause to show that Rider had committed any offense.

He seeks $100,000 general damages and $100,000 exemplary damages.

School Suspension For Hooky Players Doesn't Make Sense

(Q) "My boy is in the eighth grade. He hates school and frequently plays hooky. Last Friday he did it again. For punishment the principal suspended him from school for ten days. My son considers it a reward, not a punishment. He isn't allowed to go to school now, which is exactly what he wanted all along. Why do schools suspend such boys?"

L. N.

(A) Because it is traditional. School officials may not know what else to do. Such suspensions don't make sense to me either. I suggest you go to school and see your boy's counselor. Cooperate with everything he suggests. Try to find a school program in which your boy can succeed. Playing hooky often is a prelude to more serious delinquency.

(Q) "My husband insists our children eat every bit of food on their plates. We often have tears over it. Do you make your children clean their plates, Dr. Barbour?"

R. F.

(A) No, I don't. My wife and I expect our youngsters to take at least a few bits of everything. They must do that even though there is a dish they dislike. But the quantity is up to the child. Usually it is best to make the servings small, and let the hungry ones have seconds. Then conflicts can be avoided Children's appetites vary from meal to meal, just as yours does.

(Q) "I was told that 20 per cent of our children have tiny electrical brain waves which indicate that they could later develop epilepsy. Could that be true?"

(A) Specialists say that about 20 per cent of all humans have "abnormal" brain-wave patterns. However, when so many people are classed as abnormal, it raises a question as to what is normal. Only 1 per cent of us actually have epilepsy.

Larkspur Woman, 67, Found Dead

A 67-year-old Larkspur woman was found dead on the floor of her debris-cluttered living room last night by police officers and firemen investigating a report that she had not been seen in three days.

Coroner Frank J. Keaton said this morning that Kathleen Joy of Eden Lane had apparently died of natural causes.

Larkspur police and firemen were called at 7 o'clock last night by a neighbor of Miss Joy, who had not seen the woman in three days.

Miss Joy was in the habit of calling a cab daily for a ride around the downtown area, said Keaton.

"Our estimate is that she probably died three days ago," said Keaton. "We are now trying to locate any relatives she may have had."

Miss Joy's body was taken to the Chapel of the Hills Mortuary in San Anselmo.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Mill Valley Small Craft Harbor Near

"Jan. 15 will be Mill Valley's day," City Councilman George D. Monardo said today, "if we win final approval by the California Small Craft Harbor Commission on the $300,000 loan for a yacht harbor."

He said that, should approval be given as expected at the commission's meeting Jan. 15 in San Leandro, the city will invite bids for dredging the harbor basin for construction to begin March 1.

The navigational channel, to connect Mill Valley's harbor with deep water of the bay, would be dredged after the basin is completed, Monardo said. Estimated time to dredge the approximate 15-acre basin is 18 months.

Monardo and city engineer Stanley M. Bala met in Sacramento this week with Lachland Richards, chief of the Small Craft Harbor Division and A. Aronstein, of the State Division of Natural Resources.

"We reached agreement," the councilman said, "on the state's request for the loan subject to review by commission attorney Charles Tresher and Mill Valley's City Atty. Leland H. Jordan. The meeting will be Tuesday in Sacramento."

Following that, a special meeting of the city council will be held at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday at which the council will sign the agreement, Monardo said. Then the agreement will be taken to San Leandro for approval and signatures of the commission.

Bala said: "The signatures will mean the green light for construction. We are so optimistic of final approval that we are proceeding with printing of all technical material to invite bids."

PITBULLS

larino allowed him to interpret in place of a scheduled interpreter who failed to appear. Inasmuch as he would be under oath, Vallarino said, he would "trust him."

Clem, who testified without the help of an interpreter, said two dogs found injured in the tack room at the ranch by Sheriff's and Humane Society officials on the night of Oct. 24, had been chewed up on the Petaluma ranch by their "cow dogs." The two animals, Clem said, were caught chasing sheep.

The injured animals, one of which died the following day, were brought to the Marinwood ranch in their injured state, he said.

Clem also charged that a deputy sheriff pulled a gun on him during the raid on Oct. 25 and threatened to "blow his brains out." Clem said he had been first told the man was Donald E. Midyett, inspector for the District Attorney, but that he had later found he was Deputy Sheriff Edmond Mauberret.

He testified that Mauberret said "I ought to knock your head off." Clem said he answered, "To tell you the truth, sir, you can't do it." It was then, Clem said, that the officer pulled the gun.

"I don't think he was in a best sober way," Clem testified.

Jose Sequeira backed Clem's statement that the dogs had been injured while attacking their sheep in Petaluma. He was the one who told Clem and George about the dogs as they drove onto the ranch that afternoon, he said.

Weissich also declared that Patricia Neumann, attractive 21-year-old neighbor of the Sequeiras who testified against them on the first day of the trial, had called George night before last and said she wished to change her testimony.

It was Miss Neumann who called Sheriff's deputies on Oct. 25 to spark the raid. Weissich promised to tell the jury of the "relationship" between George and Miss Neumann which caused her to testify against the youth with whom she admitted she was "still in love."

Yet to take the stand are two expert witnesses for the prosecution, several experts for the defense, and George, the third defendant. Eight pitbulls and two cow dogs are also scheduled to show up in court.

The trial will continue at 9:30 a.m. Monday in the court of Judge Joseph G. Wilson.

Inmates To Get Shots For Polio

Polio shots will be administered to San Quentin Prison inmates under the age of 41 years starting next week, Associate Warden Dale Frady said yesterday.

Regular evening activities at the prison will be canceled and the approximately 3,500 men involved will receive their shots in the cell blocks.

The inoculations were recommended by the State Department of Public Health as a precautionary measure. The vaccinations will be given at the other less crowded prisons later.

Sausalito's Valhalla Inn Is Burglarized

The Valhalla Inn in Sausalito was burglarized of $100 and a small adding machine early this morning by two men seen running from the building by an unidentified passer-by.

Police were delayed in arrival to the scene by the witness first calling in a fire alarm. Officer John Higgins said the burglars forced open the top half of a window to get inside.

Run-Off Vote For College Set Monday

Because none of three candidates for associated students presidency of College of Marin received more than 50 per cent of votes cast, there will be a run-off election for president Monday.

Marc Mezetta of Larkspur, current vice president, was high man with 86 votes but fell six short of receiving more than half the votes cast.

In the run-off election with Mezetta will be Mike Gilman of San Francisco who came in second place in the tally yesterday with 59 votes.

Eliminated was Larry Craig of Novato who received 33 votes. Four votes went to write-in candidates.

Karl Jadrnicek of San Rafael won the vice presidency unopposed. His almost-opponent, Rick Burger of San Rafael, dropped out of the race just before the polls opened.

Margaret Deedy, daughter of College of Marin Trustee-Clerk Elizabeth M. Deedy, won the secretary position unopposed. Because no one ran for tresurer, one will be selected by the student council later.

The new officers will be installed at an assembly at 11 a.m. Wednesday in Olney Hall. The out-going officers will receive pins and the college's athletes will receive Block M awards.

Newman Loan Was 'Frozen'

A San Rafael woman, who sold a home to former San Rafael Police Officer Arthur M. Newman, explained today that Newman's loan had been "frozen," not "cancelled," as reported yesterday.

The loan was frozen when Newman was arrested on charges of robbery and burglary.

Barbara Marie Jamison of 21 Sunset Way sold a home at 5 Meadow Avenue in San Rafael to Newman. She said she went to the property this week and found about $180 worth of furniture missing from the home. She later learned Newman had given the furniture to Goodwill Industries because he thought she did not need them any more.

Continuance In Home Fraud Case

A continuance to Feb. 26 was ordered yesterday by the United States commissioner in San Francisco in the case of Albert Oberman of 115 California Avenue, Mill Valley, who is at liberty on $2,500 bail pending charges that he defrauded North Carolina home owners.

Authorities in North Carolina had sent word they were not yet ready to accept Oberman to answer to four counts of a federal grand jury indictment charging that he gave false information to homeowners in applying for FHA loans to pay for siding he had sold.

Oberman has been selling siding in the Bay Area recently.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE

Listen Carefully For Warning When Trumps Breaking Badly

What this country needs is not a five-cent cigar. My opponents seem to have that already. What the country needs is an inexpensive bell to ring a warning when the trumps are about to break badly.

There's a fortune in this for some mechanical-minded bridge player.

Opening lead — ◇ Q

Take this sort of hand. You ruff the third diamond, lead out the ace of trumps and then lead a trump to dummy's queen.

And there you go. The bell didn't ring, and down you go.

Naturally you start the clubs in the hope that West has three or more clubs. Alas. He ruffs the third club and gets out with a trump. You still have to lose a heart.

You could make the hand by leading out four rounds of trumps. West would have to lead a heart, and you would run the clubs without interruption. If you tried that, however, you might find that West had a diamond left in his hand.

BELL RINGS: What could you do if you had that inexpensive little bell that we were discussing? You should make the contract if you only knew that the trumps were about to break 4-1.

Start the same way. Ruff the third diamond and lead out the ace of trumps. Hold it now. That bell is ringing.

Turn the bell off and lead out the king of spades.

This play costs nothing if the trumps break normally. You can continue with the queen of trumps and the clubs.

As it happens, you discover the bad trump break when you lead the king of spades. You switch to clubs at once, discarding a heart on the third round. West can ruff, but cannot defeat the contract. You can get back to dummy with the queen of spades to draw West's last trump and discard another heart on dummy's last club.

DAILY QUESTION: Partner opens with 2 NT, and the next player passes. You hold: ♠ J 9 8 4; ♥ Q 9 8 3; ♦ Q J 10; ♣ 9 7. What do you say?

Answer: Bid three clubs, the Stayman Convention. This asks your partner to show a major suit if he has one. If he has no major suit, you will be satisfied with game in notrump.

School Suspension For Hooky Players Doesn't Make Sense

(Q) "My boy is in the eighth grade. He hates school and frequently plays hooky. Last Friday he did it again. For punishment the principal suspended him from school for ten days. My son considers it a reward, not a punishment. He isn't allowed to go to school now, which is exactly what he wanted all along. Why do schools suspend such boys?"

L. N.

(A) Because it is traditional. School officials may not know what else to do. Such suspensions don't make sense to me either. I suggest you go to school and see your boy's counselor. Cooperate with everything he suggests. Try to find a school program in which your boy can succeed. Playing hooky often is a prelude to more serious delinquency.

(Q) "My husband insists our children eat every bit of food on their plates. We often have tears over it. Do you make your children clean their plates, Dr. Barbour?"

R. F.

(A) No, I don't. My wife and I expect our youngsters to take at least a few bits of everything. They must do that even though there is a dish they dislike. But the quantity is up to the child. Usually it is best to make the servings small, and let the hungry ones have seconds. Then conflicts can be avoided Children's appetites vary from meal to meal, just as yours does.

(Q) "I was told that 20 per cent of our children have tiny electrical brain waves which indicate that they could later develop epilepsy. Could that be true?"

(A) Specialists say that about 20 per cent of all humans have "abnormal" brain-wave patterns. However, when so many people are classed as abnormal, it raises a question as to what is normal. Only 1 per cent of us actually have epilepsy.

Larkspur Woman, 67, Found Dead

A 67-year-old Larkspur woman was found dead on the floor of her debris-cluttered living room last night by police officers and firemen investigating a report that she had not been seen in three days.

Coroner Frank J. Keaton said this morning that Kathleen Joy of Eden Lane had apparently died of natural causes.

Larkspur police and firemen were called at 7 o'clock last night by a neighbor of Miss Joy, who had not seen the woman in three days.

Miss Joy was in the habit of calling a cab daily for a ride around the downtown area, said Keaton.

"Our estimate is that she probably died three days ago," said Keaton. "We are now trying to locate any relatives she may have had."

Miss Joy's body was taken to the Chapel of the Hills Mortuary in San Anselmo.

Mill Valley Small Craft Harbor Near

"Jan. 15 will be Mill Valley's day," City Councilman George D. Monardo said today, "if we win final approval by the California Small Craft Harbor Commission on the $300,000 loan for a yacht harbor."

He said that, should approval be given as expected at the commission's meeting Jan. 15 in San Leandro, the city will invite bids for dredging the harbor basin for construction to begin March 1.

The navigational channel, to connect Mill Valley's harbor with deep water of the bay, would be dredged after the basin is completed, Monardo said. Estimated time to dredge the approximate 15-acre basin is 18 months.

Monardo and city engineer Stanley M. Bala met in Sacramento this week with Lachland Richards, chief of the Small Craft Harbor Division and A. Aronstein, of the State Division of Natural Resources.

"We reached agreement," the councilman said, "on the state's request for the loan subject to review by commission attorney Charles Tresher and Mill Valley's City Atty. Leland H. Jordan. The meeting will be Tuesday in Sacramento."

Following that, a special meeting of the city council will be held at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday at which the council will sign the agreement, Monardo said. Then the agreement will be taken to San Leandro for approval and signatures of the commission.

Bala said: "The signatures will mean the green light for construction. We are so optimistic of final approval that we are proceeding with printing of all technical material to invite bids."

larino allowed him to interpret in place of a scheduled interpreter who failed to appear. Inasmuch as he would be under oath, Vallarino said, he would "trust him."

Clem, who testified without the help of an interpreter, said two dogs found injured in the tack room at the ranch by Sheriff's and Humane Society officials on the night of Oct. 24, had been chewed up on the Petaluma ranch by their "cow dogs." The two animals, Clem said, were caught chasing sheep.

The injured animals, one of which died the following day, were brought to the Marinwood ranch in their injured state, he said.

Clem also charged that a deputy sheriff pulled a gun on him during the raid on Oct. 25 and threatened to "blow his brains out." Clem said he had been first told the man was Donald E. Midyett, inspector for the District Attorney, but that he had later found he was Deputy Sheriff Edmond Mauberret.

He testified that Mauberret said "I ought to knock your head off." Clem said he answered, "To tell you the truth, sir, you can't do it." It was then, Clem said, that the officer pulled the gun.

"I don't think he was in a best sober way," Clem testified.

Jose Sequeira backed Clem's statement that the dogs had been injured while attacking their sheep in Petaluma. He was the one who told Clem and George about the dogs as they drove onto the ranch that afternoon, he said.

Weissich also declared that Patricia Neumann, attractive 21-year-old neighbor of the Sequeiras who testified against them on the first day of the trial, had called George night before last and said she wished to change her testimony.

It was Miss Neumann who called Sheriff's deputies on Oct. 25 to spark the raid. Weissich promised to tell the jury of the "relationship" between George and Miss Neumann which caused her to testify against the youth with whom she admitted she was "still in love."

Yet to take the stand are two expert witnesses for the prosecution, several experts for the defense, and George, the third defendant. Eight pitbulls and two cow dogs are also scheduled to show up in court.

The trial will continue at 9:30 a.m. Monday in the court of Judge Joseph G. Wilson.

Inmates To Get Shots For Polio

Polio shots will be administered to San Quentin Prison inmates under the age of 41 years starting next week, Associate Warden Dale Frady said yesterday.

Regular evening activities at the prison will be canceled and the approximately 3,500 men involved will receive their shots in the cell blocks.

The inoculations were recommended by the State Department of Public Health as a precautionary measure. The vaccinations will be given at the other less crowded prisons later.

Sausalito's Valhalla Inn Is Burglarized

The Valhalla Inn in Sausalito was burglarized of $100 and a small adding machine early this morning by two men seen running from the building by an unidentified passer-by.

Police were delayed in arrival to the scene by the witness first calling in a fire alarm. Officer John Higgins said the burglars forced open the top half of a window to get inside.

Run-Off Vote For College Set Monday

Because none of three candidates for associated students presidency of College of Marin received more than 50 per cent of votes cast, there will be a run-off election for president Monday.

Marc Mezetta of Larkspur, current vice president, was high man with 86 votes but fell six short of receiving more than half the votes cast.

In the run-off election with Mezetta will be Mike Gilman of San Francisco who came in second place in the tally yesterday with 59 votes.

Eliminated was Larry Craig of Novato who received 33 votes. Four votes went to write-in candidates.

Karl Jadrnicek of San Rafael won the vice presidency unopposed. His almost-opponent, Rick Burger of San Rafael, dropped out of the race just before the polls opened.

Margaret Deedy, daughter of College of Marin Trustee-Clerk Elizabeth M. Deedy, won the secretary position unopposed. Because no one ran for tresurer, one will be selected by the student council later.

The new officers will be installed at an assembly at 11 a.m. Wednesday in Olney Hall. The out-going officers will receive pins and the college's athletes will receive Block M awards.

Newman Loan Was 'Frozen'

A San Rafael woman, who sold a home to former San Rafael Police Officer Arthur M. Newman, explained today that Newman's loan had been "frozen," not "cancelled," as reported yesterday.

The loan was frozen when Newman was arrested on charges of robbery and burglary.

Barbara Marie Jamison of 21 Sunset Way sold a home at 5 Meadow Avenue in San Rafael to Newman. She said she went to the property this week and found about $180 worth of furniture missing from the home. She later learned Newman had given the furniture to Goodwill Industries because he thought she did not need them any more.

Continuance In Home Fraud Case

A continuance to Feb. 26 was ordered yesterday by the United States commissioner in San Francisco in the case of Albert Oberman of 115 California Avenue, Mill Valley, who is at liberty on $2,500 bail pending charges that he defrauded North Carolina home owners.

Authorities in North Carolina had sent word they were not yet ready to accept Oberman to answer to four counts of a federal grand jury indictment charging that he gave false information to homeowners in applying for FHA loans to pay for siding he had sold.

Oberman has been selling siding in the Bay Area recently.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Listen Carefully For Warning When Trumps Breaking Badly

What this country needs is not a five-cent cigar. My opponents seem to have that already. What the country needs is an inexpensive bell to ring a warning when the trumps are about to break badly.

There's a fortune in this for some mechanical-minded bridge player.

Opening lead — ◇ Q

Take this sort of hand. You ruff the third diamond, lead out the ace of trumps and then lead a trump to dummy's queen.

And there you go. The bell didn't ring, and down you go.

Naturally you start the clubs in the hope that West has three or more clubs. Alas. He ruffs the third club and gets out with a trump. You still have to lose a heart.

You could make the hand by leading out four rounds of trumps. West would have to lead a heart, and you would run the clubs without interruption. If you tried that, however, you might find that West had a diamond left in his hand.

BELL RINGS: What could you do if you had that inexpensive little bell that we were discussing? You should make the contract if you only knew that the trumps were about to break 4-1.

Start the same way. Ruff the third diamond and lead out the ace of trumps. Hold it now. That bell is ringing.

Turn the bell off and lead out the king of spades.

This play costs nothing if the trumps break normally. You can continue with the queen of trumps and the clubs.

As it happens, you discover the bad trump break when you lead the king of spades. You switch to clubs at once, discarding a heart on the third round. West can ruff, but cannot defeat the contract. You can get back to dummy with the queen of spades to draw West's last trump and discard another heart on dummy's last club.

DAILY QUESTION: Partner opens with 2 NT, and the next player passes. You hold: ♠ J 9 8 4; ♥ Q 9 8 3; ♦ Q J 10; ♣ 9 7. What do you say?

Answer: Bid three clubs, the Stayman Convention. This asks your partner to show a major suit if he has one. If he has no major suit, you will be satisfied with game in notrump.

Airmen Die In Crash

RIVERSIDE (AP) — Three Air Force officers died yesterday in the crash of a B-47 jet bomber that exploded on the runway of March Air Force Base.

They were Maj. Clarence W. Garrett Jr., the pilot, of Waco, Tex.; Lt. James E. Belt, copilot, of Wayne, Mich.; and Capt. Constino L. Segalla, navigator, of Cannon, Conn.

Witnesses said a left wing of the bomber burst into flames and the plane nose-dived while it taxied along the runway. It skidded to the end of the runway, exploded and burned.

Three Drunken Drivers Fined

Three drunken drivers drew fines and probation this week before Judge Harold J. Haley of Marin Municipal Court.

Airmen Die In Crash

RIVERSIDE (AP) — Three Air Force officers died yesterday in the crash of a B-47 jet bomber that exploded on the runway of March Air Force Base.

They were Maj. Clarence W. Garrett Jr., the pilot, of Waco, Tex.; Lt. James E. Belt, copilot, of Wayne, Mich.; and Capt. Constino L. Segalla, navigator, of Cannon, Conn.

Witnesses said a left wing of the bomber burst into flames and the plane nose-dived while it taxied along the runway. It skidded to the end of the runway, exploded and burned.

Three Drunken Drivers Fined

Three drunken drivers drew fines and probation this week before Judge Harold J. Haley of Marin Municipal Court.

James Kevin Murphy, 37, of 348 Peachstone Terrace, Marinwood, must pay $220 fine and remain on six months probation. Murphy was caught on Highway 101 near Terra Linda on Dec. 13.

Arthur Louis Beringer, 46, of 66 Platt Avenue, Sausalito, and James Johnston, 39, of Berkeley drew identical sentences—six months probation and $166 fine each. Beringer was caught Dec. 27 on Spencer Avenue in Sausalito, and Johnston on Dec. 17 on Highway 101 near Marin City.

ALLEN & SON

Empty Nest — Kentfield — $30,900
The owners have moved away, the price is reduced. This view home is large (2,600 square feet) and each of the three bedrooms is generous in size. Both living room and family room (below) have fireplaces; kitchen is a homemaker's delight. Plenty of parking; deck, patio.

Uncle Ebenezer — Larkspur — $37,500 wouldn't care much for this house. It's too forward-looking. But for modern families interested in functional living, here's their answer. Magnificent living room, A-framed, windows rising to a peak of 25 ft. Vermont slate fireplace wall, rising to an impressive height. Latest efficiencies fill every inch of the attractive kitchen. 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, laundry and storage room. The 400-square-foot deck, oak-shaded, has a view of the East Bay, across valley and water.

3,900 Square Feet — Villa Real — $46,500
There are 1,900 square feet upstairs, 2,000 below. Almost new home, 3 bedrooms, 2 baths. Large kitchen with generous eating area; fireplaces in both living room and rumpus room. House is so constructed that it would be an easy conversion to 5 bedrooms. 10,000 square feet in view lot.

Garden Showplace — Kentfield — $55,000
With time to work on his beautifully landscaped corner lot, anl the interest to inspire his effort, the owner has created a delightful setting for the comfortable home. Flower beds, shrubs, trees, ornamental plants, lawns provide variety. Glass wall down bedroom hall and in the living room (the house is L-shaped) look out on the two-level garden, large enough for a pool site. 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, fine kitchen. Interesting fireplace wall detail.

A Banquet Dinner — Larkspur — $57,500 would be a snap in this large dining room, with the large kitchen for preparation. Thirty-year-old home, U-shaped, with plenty of space, built around a formal garden. 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, study, entrance sunroom. Acre lot with graceful circular driveway, paths, patios, large trees. Bedroom and bath adjoining 2-car garage. View.

Boating Convenience — San Rafael — $58,500
Boat owners will appreciate the practical aspects of having a dock (45 feet long in this case) at the front door. The 3-bedroom, 3-bath home is on a deep-water channel with 100 feet of waterfront property. Fireplaces in both family room, living room. Glassed-in porch.

City Lights — Del Mesa — $72,500
Look across rooftops, trees and water to the city beyond. This Del Mesa home has one of the area's best views. It's also large and elegant. Five bedroom, 3 bath, luxurious entertainment room, storage, workshop, dining room. View decks off the living room, covered porch overlooks secluded tile patio. Split level design with level entrance area. Ross School District.

Salt Water — Ross — $75,000
fills the swimming pool of this magnificently-situated estate. The two-acre property is on a knoll, completely private, nicely landscaped. Brick terrace surrounds the pool, and dressing rooms, a guest room and bath adjoin the pool terrace. Two steps below is a completely equipped barbecue patio. Three bedrooms, 2 baths in the charming, livable home; full dining room, den, game room, large kitchen. Outstanding view of the mountain, across valley and trees.

Be a Country Squire — Fairfax — $75,000
Three acres atop a wooded ridge include a hay storage barn, corrals, tack room (with clean little apartment adjoining), and a home that will last a century. It's built of the timbers used to support forms in building the Golden Gate Bridge, and the living room has an impressive stone fireplace wall. Four bedrooms, 2 baths, nice kitchen, utility room storage room with yards of shelves for canned goods. Protected entrance, miles of rolling wooded hills seen from the terrace. Picnic deck is set in redwood grove. Outside lighting throughout the nicely-landscaped grounds.

Latest efficiencies fill every inch of the attractive kitchen. 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, laundry and storage room. Flower beds, shrubs, trees, ornamental plants, lawns provide variety. Glass wall down bedroom hall and in the living room (the house is L-shaped) look out on the two-level garden, large enough for a pool site. 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, fine kitchen. Interesting fireplace wall detail.

'Good Old Days' Of Ferries Left Much To Be Desired

The people who advocate "modern, fast" ferry service instead of another bridge to San Francisco must be newcomers here — or people with short memories.

Do you remember the traffic jams on sunny Summer Sundays which saw automobiles backed up bumper-to-bumper from San Rafael all the way to Sausalito waiting for the ferry?

Passenger ferries only? If so, we better prepare a parking space about three times the one at Disneyland so we will have room to park the cars of ferry passengers.

Do you remember the times the ferry shut down during winter storms when the bay was just too rough?

And do you remember the foggy nights when it quit running because visibility dropped to zero?

Or, how about the times the ferries smashed up the slip or into each other and subsequently were out of commission for varying periods of time?

Do you remember the time that the Richmond-San Rafael ferry was closed for SIX LONG MONTHS by strike?

And fares—do you remember that high as the Richmond Bridge fare is (75 cents) it is still less than the ferry fare was when the bridge opened?

Ferries were like buses, streecars and trains; fares went steadily up, but service got worse because losses were always increasing.

No thanks, we don't care to go back to those miseries again.

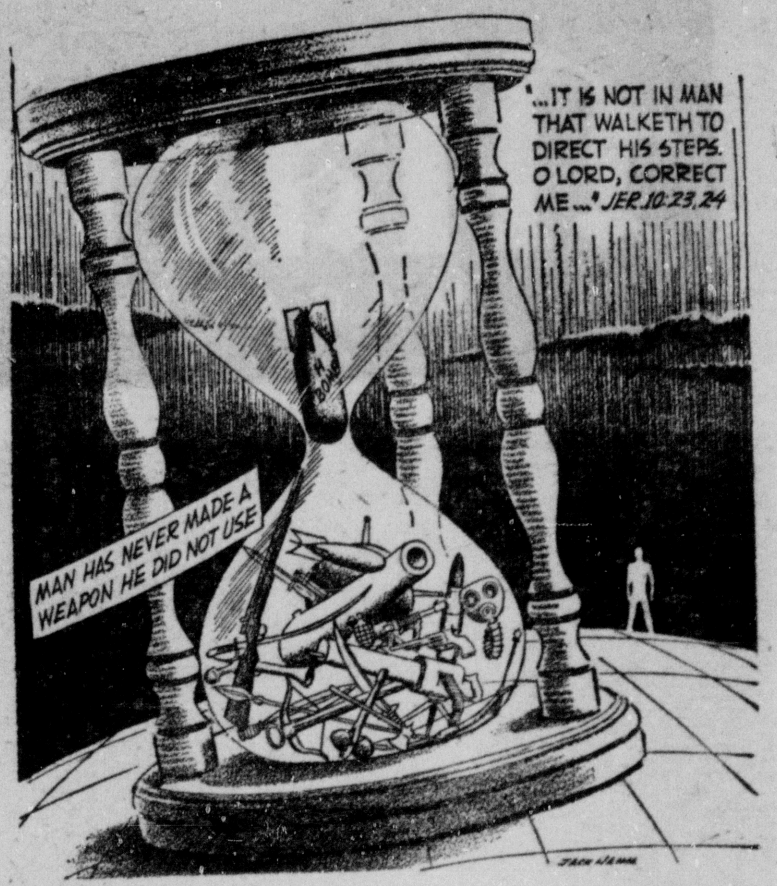

The brighter memories are indeed fond. On a bright day when the bay was calm (and you weren't in any particular hurry to get somewhere) the ferry was most pleasant.

But for day-in, day-out dependability they left much to be desired.

We expect that modern navigational aids and other technilogical advances have helped in some respects, but we prefer the short, rather fast moving line at the bridge toll-gate to the long waits for loading and unloading ferries.

We are in the process of out-growing the Golden Gate bridge; we ought properly to be moving ahead with the planning of a new one.

A MATTER OF TIME?

Bouquets And Brickbats

A BOUQUET to Supervisor Peter Behr for his key part in bringing unanimous agreement among his colleagues on salary adjustments for county employees.

BRICKBATS to the Novato School Board for their suggestion that press representatives be allowed to attend a closed session of the board—with restriction on what thereafter might be printed. That smacked of secret government with a kind of censorship imposed.

A BOUQUET to Supervisor Walter Castro on the occasion of his restoration as chairman of the board. May his term be productive and constructive.

A BOUQUET to Larry Mayer on becoming president of the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce for 1962.

A BOUQUET to Cabell Gwathmey of Belvedere on his election as president of the Northern California Chapter, American Institute of Architects.

BOUQUETS to Fred Jensen and his fellow members of the San Rafael city council for their efforts to discourage litterbugging in the county seat city. We hope the reward system is effective.

A BOUQUET to the 1962 calendar. Due to April 15 being a Sunday this year, the Income Tax return deadline is extended to midnight April 16. But the thorn of paying still remains in this rose.

BOUQUETS to the Rundbergs of Lucas Valley and the Thurfjells of Sweden, each one with a child attending high school in the other family's home town. The youngsters learn and live.

A BOUQUET to Danseuse Joan Edgerton Grigg, who ends a year's sudden illness and slow recovery by reopening her "Les Petite Ballerinas" in Mill Valley's Outdoor Art Club, where many former pupils will resume classic ballet.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

RIGHT NOW

A man who spent 34 years trying to decide upon a career ended up in a London court not long ago, on charges of stealing a bicycle.

He told the judge that when he left school at the age of 14, he thought it would be a good idea to take a little time off to figure out what he should do with his life.

The man, now 48, confessed: "I am still looking around. I have never yet started on a job."

While most persons would not dilly-dally for 3 decades before choosing a worthwhile career, too many individuals neglect to devote themselves wholeheartedly to their daily tasks, whatever they may be.

Whether you are a student, home-maker, delivery boy, government official or nurse, give of your best to your daily tasks. You will add a divine meaning and purpose to your life if you do.

And you will be preparing yourself for any greater responsibilities that God may offer you.

"Why do you stand here all day idle?"
(Matthew 20:6)

Help me to lead a useful life, O Lord.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By WAT TAKESHITA

Learning The Twist Proves Too Expensive, Too Hard On Floor

SOMEBODY TOLD ME the Twist is easy to learn—Just take two cigarette butts, toss them on the ground, and grind them out with both feet at the same time.

What to do with the hands and body? That's easy too, they told me. Just make like you're drying your backside with a big bath towel.

So New Year's Eve we tried the twist. I didn't light the cigarettes because that's rough on Sabella's floor. Some 30 minutes and two packs of cigarettes later, partner May was still going strong, but I decided I'd had it. Too expensive throwing good cigarettes on the floor.

But that was 1961. So what's new for 1962? For one thing, with County Clerk George Jones out of the running, they're lining up in earnest for the June election.

HAVE YOU heard the rumor that Mayor Wayne Womack of Novato may go for the supervisor's post now held by William Gnoss?

Watch for Lucien D. Miller to face candidate Stanley Fontez in the race for county tax collector-treasurer. Miller should be announcing soon.

WHEN THE Sequeiras' attorney threatened to bring the pitbulls into court, a sheriff's inspector cried out in mock alarm: "How are they gonna swear the dogs in?"

"That's simple," quipped Inspector Ray Barton. "Get police dogs to swear them in."

SPEAKING OF swearing, there's a young steno around town whose New Year resolution is never to use even a mild swear word in the office. On Jan. 2 she walks in bright and early and proclaims to all her colleagues: "For every swear word I use, I'll contribute a nickel to the kitty. And I mean it, dammit." Nickels have been pouring in since.

INSIDE THE courthouse they were trying a man accused of stealing parking meter coins. Outside, on the San Rafael streets, two girls about 13 were walking along the sidewalk when they spotted the city's efficient meter maid tag an overparked car.

When the girls spotted another red flag, one girl reached in her purse, pulled out a coin and "saved" the car from a tag. Then both girls began digging for coins, happily feeding meters for all overparked cars on the street, just one jump ahead of the traffic officer.

The girls were quite unaware that they were being watched by an amused bystander, Ray Eubanks. "Must have been the Christmas spirit carried over into the new year," said Eubanks.

ARE YOU still interested in fallout shelters and survival? If you are, you can get some expert tips at a meeting set for Wednesday night, Jan. 10, at 8 p.m. at San Pedro School in San Rafael. The school Dad's Club got Bill Parness of Livermore as speaker. Remember Parness? He used to be city manager in San Rafael.

Bouquets And Brickbats

A BOUQUET to Supervisor Peter Behr for his key part in bringing unanimous agreement among his colleagues on salary adjustments for county employees.

BRICKBATS to the Novato School Board for their suggestion that press representatives be allowed to attend a closed session of the board—with restriction on what thereafter might be printed. That smacked of secret government with a kind of censorship imposed.

A BOUQUET to Supervisor Walter Castro on the occasion of his restoration as chairman of the board. May his term be productive and constructive.

A BOUQUET to Larry Mayer on becoming president of the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce for 1962.

A BOUQUET to Cabell Gwathmey of Belvedere on his election as president of the Northern California Chapter, American Institute of Architects.

BOUQUETS to Fred Jensen and his fellow members of the San Rafael city council for their efforts to discourage litterbugging in the county seat city. We hope the reward system is effective.

A BOUQUET to the 1962 calendar. Due to April 15 being a Sunday this year, the Income Tax return deadline is extended to midnight April 16. But the thorn of paying still remains in this rose.

BOUQUETS to the Rundbergs of Lucas Valley and the Thurfjells of Sweden, each one with a child attending high school in the other family's home town. The youngsters learn and live.

A BOUQUET to Danseuse Joan Edgerton Grigg, who ends a year's sudden illness and slow recovery by reopening her "Les Petite Ballerinas" in Mill Valley's Outdoor Art Club, where many former pupils will resume classic ballet.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

RIGHT NOW

A man who spent 34 years trying to decide upon a career ended up in a London court not long ago, on charges of stealing a bicycle.

He told the judge that when he left school at the age of 14, he thought it would be a good idea to take a little time off to figure out what he should do with his life.

The man, now 48, confessed: "I am still looking around. I have never yet started on a job."

While most persons would not dilly-dally for 3 decades before choosing a worthwhile career, too many individuals neglect to devote themselves wholeheartedly to their daily tasks, whatever they may be.

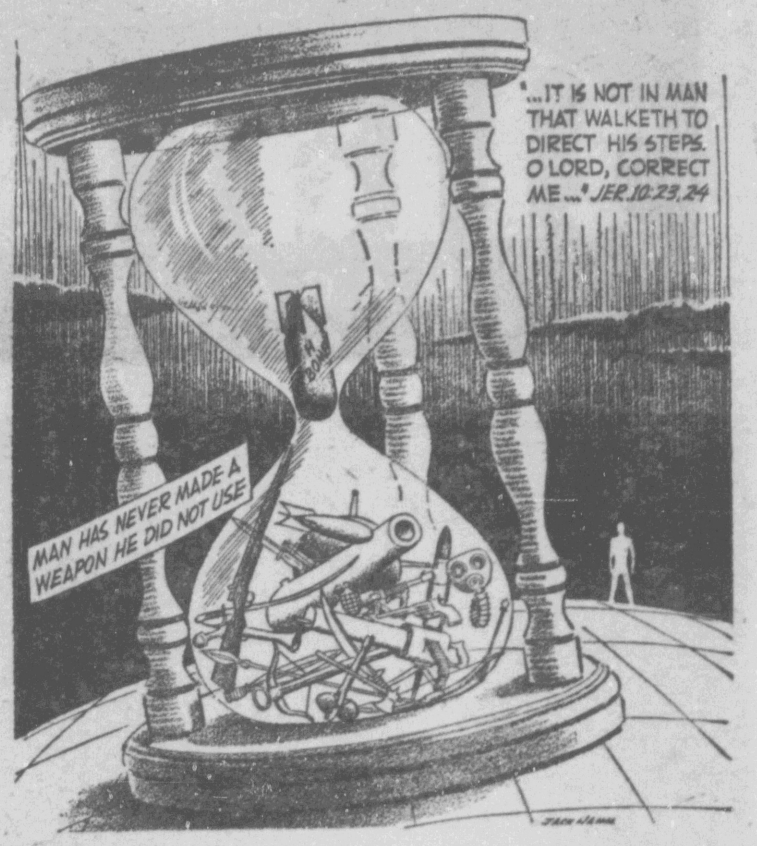

Whether you are a student, home-maker, delivery boy, government official or nurse, give of your best to your daily tasks. You will add a divine meaning and purpose to your life if you do.

And you will be preparing yourself for any greater responsibilities that God may offer you.

"Why do you stand here all day idle?"
(Matthew 20:6)

Help me to lead a useful life, O Lord.

Learning The Twist Proves Too Expensive, Too Hard On Floor

SOMEBODY TOLD ME the Twist is easy to learn—Just take two cigarette butts, toss them on the ground, and grind them out with both feet at the same time.

What to do with the hands and body? That's easy too, they told me. Just make like you're drying your backside with a big bath towel.

So New Year's Eve we tried the twist. I didn't light the cigarettes because that's rough on Sabella's floor. Some 30 minutes and two packs of cigarettes later, partner May was still going strong, but I decided I'd had it. Too expensive throwing good cigarettes on the floor.

But that was 1961. So what's new for 1962? For one thing, with County Clerk George Jones out of the running, they're lining up in earnest for the June election.

HAVE YOU heard the rumor that Mayor Wayne Womack of Novato may go for the supervisor's post now held by William Gnoss?

Watch for Lucien D. Miller to face candidate Stanley Fontez in the race for county tax collector-treasurer. Miller should be announcing soon.

WHEN THE Sequeiras' attorney threatened to bring the pitbulls into court, a sheriff's inspector cried out in mock alarm: "How are they gonna swear the dogs in?"

"That's simple," quipped Inspector Ray Barton. "Get police dogs to swear them in."

SPEAKING OF swearing, there's a young steno around town whose New Year resolution is never to use even a mild swear word in the office. On Jan. 2 she walks in bright and early and proclaims to all her colleagues: "For every swear word I use, I'll contribute a nickel to the kitty. And I mean it, dammit." Nickels have been pouring in since.

INSIDE THE courthouse they were trying a man accused of stealing parking meter coins. Outside, on the San Rafael streets, two girls about 13 were walking along the sidewalk when they spotted the city's efficient meter maid tag an overparked car.

When the girls spotted another red flag, one girl reached in her purse, pulled out a coin and "saved" the car from a tag. Then both girls began digging for coins, happily feeding meters for all overparked cars on the street, just one jump ahead of the traffic officer.

The girls were quite unaware that they were being watched by an amused bystander, Ray Eubanks. "Must have been the Christmas spirit carried over into the new year," said Eubanks.

ARE YOU still interested in fallout shelters and survival? If you are, you can get some expert tips at a meeting set for Wednesday night, Jan. 10, at 8 p.m. at San Pedro School in San Rafael. The school Dad's Club got Bill Parness of Livermore as speaker. Remember Parness? He used to be city manager in San Rafael.

Kennedy's Public Approval Rating Far Higher After Year In Office

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy enters upon his second 12 months in a strengthened political position.

This second session of the 87th Congress will be encountering a more popular, a more confident, and a more decisive President.

Gone is Mr. Kennedy's haunting pre-occupation with the closness of the election; gone is that special element of uncertainty which came from the fact that a near-majority wanted Mr. Nixon in the White House.

Congress will not be a rubber stamp this year any more than it was last. Congress remains the same, more conservative than the Democratic platform and on some issues more conservative than the Chief Executive. But the President is not the same.

There is this difference: after winning the election so closely that he barely made it, Mr. Kennedy has in less than a year remarkably consolidated his standing with the American people.

As a candidate for President Mr. Kennedy was able to win no more than a paper-thin majority. As President Mr. Kennedy has succeeded in winning a higher approval-rating than any of his recent predecessors—a high of 83 per cent, and in the latest Gallup poll, 77 per cent. (Mr. Eisenhower's peak was 79 per cent.)

Last January Mr. Kennedy took office as a Chief Executive who almost lost. This January he is a President who has gained new political credentials and new public standing.

THIS DOES THREE things. It gives the President greater confidence. It encourages him to take a bolder course, as he has in his proposed trade policy to take advantage of the European Common Market. It gives added leverage to his leadership.

Opinions will vary as to what has produced the nearly steady rise in Mr. Kennedy's graph of public approval. But the fact is not in dispute. Senate leaders of both parties, recently returning after several months at home, almost uniformly agree on the President's general popularity. Sen. Barry Goldwater noticed it, but he does not believe it will help the White House much with Congress on controversial legislation. Sen. Mike Mansfield noticed it, and believes it will help the White House. It was confirmed in the elections last fall. Where Mr. Kennedy personally campaigned, as in New Jersey and Texas, the Democrats won.

WHEN YOU LOOK back over his first year in office, it is evident that in the early months of the new Administration the President was neither very popular — nor very unpopular — until he made the great mistake over Cuba. Oddly enough, the first substantial rise in Mr. Kennedy's public approval status came in the immediate wake of the Cuban fiasco. Since that time it has risen further and held. These seem to be the reasons:

1—Obviously the horrendous failure of the Cuban operation—all the blame on the United States for having a hand in it but never putting a sufficiently strong hand in it to make it successful—did not give the President any credit or any credentials. But the fact that Mr. Kennedy publicly took the full responsibility for all the final decisions, quickly calling off the overeager apologists who were looking for scapegoats, did more than anything else to win him an upsurge of goodwill and approval.

I know of no one in the Administration and few outside who do not think that Mr. Kennedy learned immeasurably from the Cuban experience and that his action in taking complete blame was not only wise but accurate. He was to blame and in saying so he won more public support than the failure lost him.

2—The second factor in the President's present popularity is his wise and firm handling of the Berlin crisis. He has succeeded in strengthening his ties with Macmillan, de Gaulle, and Adenauer. He has helped to keep the allies united on the substance of policy, including the undeviating determination to defend our rights in West Berlin. He has kept the door open for serious negotiation whenever the Soviets want to negotiate seriously.

Most people, I think, feel that the danger of war over Berlin is less than it was six months ago largely because Mr. Kennedy has got his message through to the Kremlin.

Walter Lord tells a story about President Calvin Coolidge's visit to the Alamo that is funny but hard to believe.

According to Lord, Mr. Coolidge stood looking at the Alamo in silence for quite a while, then turned to his guide and asked, "What's it for?"

Les Carpenter is telling a cock-and-bull story about an East Indian named Singh, who loved to mitch—which in his native tongue meant to burst out into wild, unrestrained song. Well, a U. S. aid program helped our hero set up a television station in his local district and, of course, his first big hit show was "Mitch along with Singh."

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Will you please print this letter as a correction of a misstatement which appeared on your front page Thursday, Dec. 21 concerning the Nativity scene in Sausalito. The caption over a picture of the Chamber of Commerce creche said: "Last year, the city withdrew permission for the chamber to place the creche in Vina del Mar Plaza because of objection by the American Civil Liberties Union. It was installed in front of the bank, but the ACLU subsequently objected also to that location, according to City Manager Charles A. Brown."

City Manager Brown was either mistaken or misquoted. ACLU never objected to this display on private property. As a matter of fact, ACLU would very strongly object to any legal action interfering with the right of the Chamber of Commerce or anyone else to put such a display on private property.

Vote Of Thanks For Yule Decor

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

As we sit here writing checks and paying bills — a custom borrowed from the Chinese—and getting our personal affairs off to a good start for 1962, one important thing must be done.

We would like to extend a vote of thanks to a town and to a family.

Thank you, William H. Schwartz, for the lighting of your Christmas star high atop the mountain, and thank you, men of public works of Corte Madera, for the lovely tree at the entrance of our town.

So many things are designed to make Christmas give one a sad and terribly commercial feeling, but whenever that struck us, we simply looked at the bottom or top of our town and felt warm and grateful this year.

White House Spokesman Recalls Days Of Coolidge

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Newspaper stories from Palm Beach reveal to the discerning reader that President Kennedy has seized upon a new and relaxed method of communicating his thoughts to the people.

Almost, but not quite, President Kennedy has disinterred The White House Spokesman. The White House Spokesman was a famous character of the Coolidge administration. Calvin Coolidge wore him thin. This spokesman was a figure of convenience to Coolidge and to the newsmen who reported the Coolidge press conferences. Conference rules were strict. All questions had to be submitted in advance, in writing. Coolidge always stood when he received us, signalling that the conference had begun by parking his cigar in an ash tray.

Cautious Cal then would riffle through the sheaf of note paper in his hand, each bearing a written question. Some would flutter from his hands to the floor without answer. Others would obtain a response. The reporter who dared to ask a question orally was quickly squelched.

THE HARVEST of this carefully screened conference process then was attributed to The White House Spokesman. The reading public caught on to that dodge, however, and all hands soon understood that this phony spokesman was, in fact, the president. Coolidge stayed with it however, until finally the spokesman became the butt of crude jokes by comedians starring on that latest wonder of the 20th century, the wireless or radio.

Herbert Hoover kept to the written questions but permitted his own ideas to be attributed to him, although not in direct quotation. Franklin D. Roosevelt abandoned questions in writing and invited reporters to fire at will. Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower did the same although neither was as handy as FDR at sparring with reporters. Eisenhower permitted publication of the questions and answers for direct quotation after they had been scanned by his White House staff.

HST and FDR got the most pleasure from the give and take of news conferences. Truman was no match for Roosevelt, however, in shaping the conferences to his own political ends. Truman's chief fault was a tendency to fire from the hip. These quick hip shots often missed their target but HST always hit somebody, even an innocent bystander, or sometimes himself. Anyway, he enjoyed it.

THE KENNEDY administration put the news conferences on live TV. Less so now than at first. Only a president of great courage and of greater self-confidence would dare to do that. A presidential miscue could be disastrous, literally disastrous. Kennedy has gotten away with it, however, and persons familiar with the hazards were and are impressed.

From Palm Beach last weekend came long stories of what is in the president's mind. These views are attributed to friends, to reliable persons who enjoy his confidence, to informed sources. Kennedy's ideas are not attributed to The White House Spokesman but definitely seem to be in that spokesman's relaxed mood. That spook took a lot of heat off Coolidge.

The procedures by which the modern newspaper keeps its readers up to date on local news developments is a team effort.

There are editors who coordinate and direct the coverage. There are reporters who gather the facts and write the stories. And there are copy readers who check the accuracy of the facts, who "edit" the copy and who see to it that the news reaches the readers in a manner they can digest and understand.

Also "in the act" as highly valuable members of the news team are the photographers.

On your Independent-Journal, the three men who man the camera for most of the local pictures appearing in the newspaper are Richard Steinheimer, Robert Hax and James Kean.

Wherever news is occurring in Marin, you will see them and their cameras. At the scenes of wrecks, fires and crimes, at meetings of public bodies and citizen groups, at athletic, social and school events, and at scores of other activities, they work with I-J reporters in recording for you the news as it takes place.

We have asked the Independent-Journal photographers to select from the pictures they took in 1961 some of the photographs which they feel best represent their work.

The photographs which they selected appear on this page and on the three pages that follow. No doubt you will remember many of them. And the 1961 news events which they depicted.

AN OPPORTUNITY for spectacular photographs came the way of the Independent-Journal photographers in July of 1961 when fire broke out in the Northwestern Pacific Railroad Company's tunnel underneath Lincoln Avenue in San Rafael. The entire Independent-Journal photographic staff was at the scene. The photos they took not only appeared in the I-J, but were distributed to newspapers across the country by the press services. The picture in the upper left hand corner of this page was taken by Dick Steinheimer. The larger photo above was snapped by Jim Kean. Both show firefighters in a grim struggle that cost one of their number his life. The Kean photo appeared in the London Illustrated Press.

VIOLENCE AND CRIME occur less frequently in suburban Marin than in metropolitan localities. Nevertheless, Independent-Journal photographers often find themselves rushing to take pictures at the scenes of such explosions. This one of a bullet-riddled car was taken by Bob Hax during 1961.

WHILE STAFF PHOTOGRAPHERS take most of the local pictures which appear in the Independent-Journal, the I-J newsroom staff also includes a number of reporters who are capable of doubling as photographers. VIOLENCE AND CRIME occur less frequently in suburban Marin than in metropolitan localities. Nevertheless, Independent-Journal photographers often find themselves rushing to take pictures at the scenes of such explosions. This one of a bullet-riddled car was taken by Bob Hax during 1961.

WHILE STAFF PHOTOGRAPHERS take most of the local pictures which appear in the Independent-Journal, the I-J newsroom staff also includes a number of reporters who are capable of doubling as photographers. One of those versatile performers in 1961 was Ellen Bry who shot this picture of a Hamilton Air Force Base parachutist for the Marin Magazine to help illustrate a feature story she was writing.

NEWS PHOTOGRAPHY is not all covering automobile accidents, fires and the other grimmer aspects of the news. Sometimes the lighter side is involved, as the three Dick Steinheimer photos above illustrate. At top, the photographer always appreciates the opportunity to demonstrate his creativity, as Steinheimer did in this unusual picture of artist Enid Foster. At center, one of the more pleasant assignments is photographing a pretty girl. The subject here is Pam Stettler, being welcomed home after finishing as runnerup for Miss USA honors in the Miss Universe Pageant. And in bottom photo, an animal is always a favorite subject of the photographer. This sorrowful-looking dog was one of the more eye-catching Marin Magazine covers of 1961.

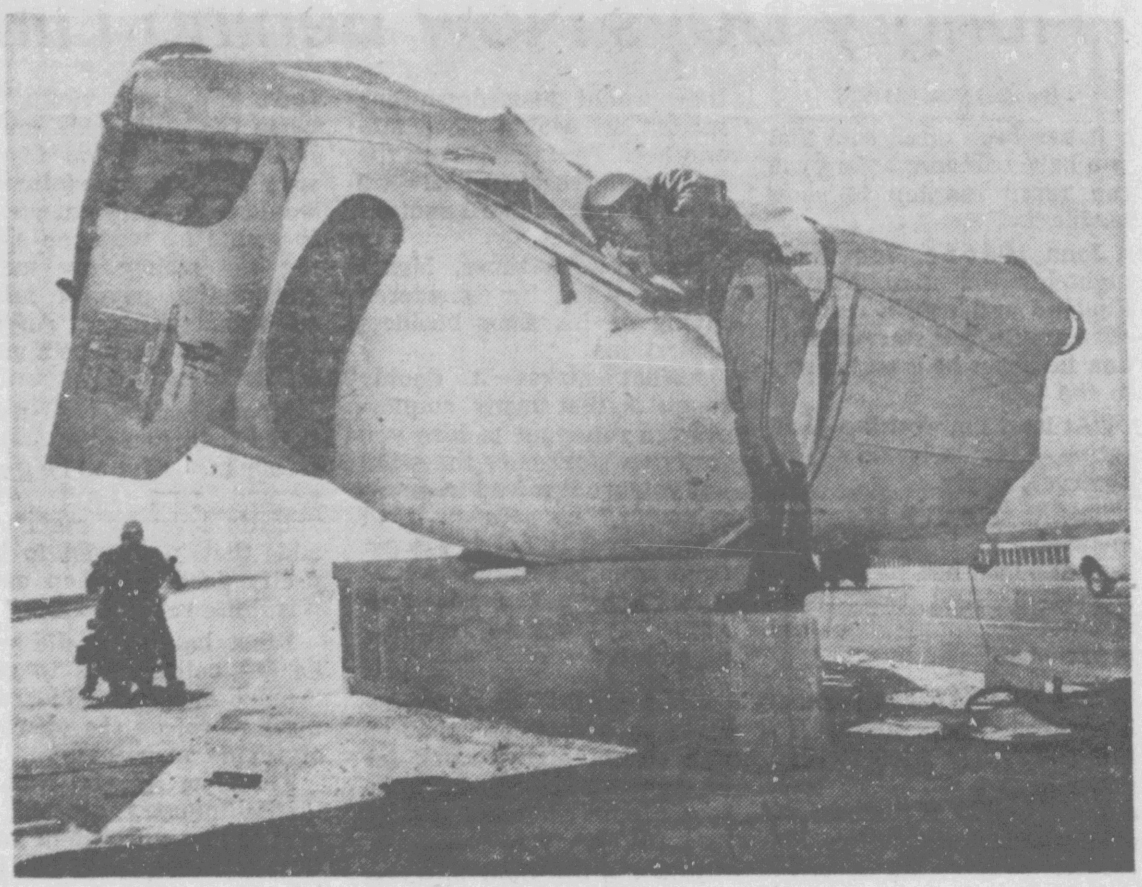

MANY TRAFFIC EXPERTS regard newspaper photographs of automobile accident scenes and of wrecked cars as one of the best deterrents to careless driving. It is difficult to visualize anyone looking at photographs such as the three spectacular Independent-Journal shots of 1961 shown above — and then risking his own life by reckless driving. The top photo was taken by Bob Hax, the middle picture by Jim Kean and the bottom photo by Dick Steinheimer.

GRIM ROAD FOR COMIC

A Young Comedian Hopes His Hungry Days Now Behind Him

By DON KEOWN

It has been often said that you have to starve before you can reach the top in show business.

John Moore, 24-year-old nightclub comedian, born in England and now a resident of Sausalito, has starved. And now he hopes he is on his way to the top.

"At least I'm working—and eating — regularly now," he observes, wryly.

The comic will have you know that he is not speaking figuratively when he talks of starvation. And that there was nothing funny about the experience.

THE ORDEAL came sometime after Moore arrived in this country in 1958, settled down in San Francisco and, after a period of indecision, decided upon comedy as his career.

He was working regularly enough—every night at a spot on San Francisco's Broadway called Ann's 440 Club that has since closed. But his salary consisted of the experience he gained by performing. There was no monetary reward whatsoever.

"I had one shiny suit and one pair of shoes, the soles of which were full of holes," he recalls. "I didn't have busfare, let alone cabfare, so I walked to and from the club. And it was quite a jaunt. I used to carry my shoes and walk barefoot so that the holes wouldn't get any bigger.

"And there were plenty of days when the only things I had to eat were the cherries I swiped off the bar at the club. I mean that literally. Blimey, was I hungry!

"We were staying in an old San Francisco house that had been condemned, and they were tearing it down. As they would tear down one section, we would move into another. And then, when the wreckers reached it, we would move into still another room."

There were times, Moore admits, when he considered giving up his show business aspirations.

"What makes it doubly tough is that many employers are reluctant to hire you for other work once they find out you are involved in entertainment," he says. "I don't know why it is, but I even got fired from a part-time job as a bus boy when the boss found out I was working in a nightclub."

AT ONE POINT Moore became so despondent that he quit the nightclub work for an eight-month period. But he soon found himself drawn back into its fold.

How did the show business bug get into his blood?

Well, says Moore, inheritance is a possibility. His mother had been a ballerina prior to his birth in Bristol. His father was an aircraft and automobile designer for Bristol Aircraft who used to entertain the other members of his family with impersonations of his fellow workers.

"The old man was artistic and at the same time had a wonderful sense of humor," Moore says. "He loved a good joke."

Moore attended English secondary school and then enrolled at the University of Bristol, majoring in drama and benefiting from the university's Bristol Old Vic Theater School. In college, Moore also belonged to the university aircraft squadron and wound up with a commission as an RAF fighter pilot.

His studies were interrupted by a two-year tour of duty with the Air Force. During most of that time he conducted a dance band at his base. "And when my two years were up, I was one of the few who weren't asked to sign up again," he says. "It had become apparent that I just wasn't the sort for the military."

Back at the university, Moore still wasn't set upon a theatrical career. "For one thing, I knew I was too short and not good-looking enough for leading man roles. For another, I had had a disastrous experience with the violin while I was a youngster."

HIS MOTHER, it seems, decided that her son had to learn to play the violin. "But when the other kids saw me going to and from my lessons, carrying my violin, they would throw rocks at me. So it wound up with me spending the money my mother gave me to pay for lessons on biscuits instead. Anyway, I wasn't cut out to be a violinist."

Moore considered such fields as airline pilot and car salesman. In college he worked part time selling "plastic lavatory seats" and adds that "I proved to be a pretty good salesman and it was quite remunerative,"

What he finally did when he left college was to go to Sweden and enroll in a technical school on the operation of textile machinery.

There he learned that the textile industry did not appeal to him. So, when he returned to England, his first job was a stage manager of the big traveling opera troupe, the Carl Rosa Opera Company.

"I made my stage debut," he says, "when the curtain went up accidentally and prematurely one night between acts and caught me bent over and picking up the props. The audience howled."

Then a stage manager friend got Moore a part—as the goat boy—with a traveling company that was performing "Teahouse of the August Moon."

It was in 1958 that Moore and a friend—"We were kind of bored"—decided upon a trip to Canada to visit a chum. Once in Canada, they decided to continue on to San Francisco.

Moore used his Swedish technical school training and "a good line of gab" to talk his way into a job with British Motor Cars of San Francisco as a service repairman. His association with that firm ended after three months—"they weren't really ready for me," he says.

MOORE THEN enrolled in San Francisco State College in television and drama courses while working as a car salesman. At that time he was living in Fairfax. When he authored a couple of humorous articles for a San Francisco State publication, a friend, Lew Gardner, suggested that he write a nightclub act and try for an audition. With Gardner's help, the act was written.

"It had a little of everything in it," Moore says.

The audition was held at San Francisco's colorful Purple Onion club. And the powers-that-be there liked what they heard and saw and engaged Moore for some live shows at the Onion.

"But I bombed," says Moore. "I was so bad it was ghastly."

Why did he fail? Because, says Moore, "I didn't know U.S. humor or, for that matter, anything else about the country."

His act, Moore says, was totally lacking in topical references "because I just wasn't up on American politics, personalities, culture and such." And his humor was more the dry British type than the freewheeling American kind.

Moore decided that the best way to correct those deficiencies was to watch successful American comedians in action. And he set out to do just that.

Enrico Banducci of the hungry i and Barry Drew of the Purple Onion would let Moore into their nightspots free of charge, and he would sit in a corner through the night watching the comedians perform.

"I saw them all, from Mort Sahl to unknowns, and I learned something from each of them," Moore says.

He lauds Sahl as "one of the cleverest thinking men in the United States." And also praises the quick wit of Lenny Bruce.

BUT IT WAS from Jonathan Winters, he feels, that he personally benefited the most. His act was subsequently to take on a Winters touch including the one-man "skits" that that comedian has made so popular.

Of Winters, Moore observes: "I think he goes over because he is, personally, the most likeable of the comics."

Following his stint as an observer, Moore plunged into show business, first at Ann's 440 Club for experience only, then at the Arenae and other small clubs.

And now the American au-

No Holes In His Soles Now

diences were digging Moore's humor.

"You have to hit harder when you are performing before Americans," is the way Moore explains the change. "And you have to convince the audience that you feel for people and that you like people and care about the things they do. Before, I had only a British accent that interested them for a time. But they soon became bored. Now I had an act."

Moore has just completed an engagement at The Shiloh, a San Francisco coffee house. This week he is appearing at The Minstrel in San Jose. And starting next Tuesday, he will be in Las Vegas at a spot known as The Showboat.

MOORE SAYS he doesn't know a thing about The Showboat.

"But it's in Vegas, and I'm going to get paid, and that's enough for me," he says.

Moore lives in an apartment atop an old house in Sausalito "and I love it—especially the view."

He says he plans to remain in the United States and become a citizen. Despite the hard times he has experienced here, he is impressed by the opportunities the country offers.

"For instance," he says, "the theatrical facilities are fantastic. We had nothing like it in England."

And now that he's got the feel of American humor, he's confident that he is on his way to success. "Why, I've even got two pairs of shoes already," he says. "And there aren't any holes in the soles."

ANOTHER impersonation that Moore frequently includes in his act is Adolf Hitler, the late and unlamented Nazi dictator. The older members of the audience seem to get a special kick out of impersonations, Moore says.

Marin Skiers Build Themselves Base High In The Snow Country

First Phase Of Lodge Building In Heart Of Resort Area Has Now Been Completed

By DON KEOWN

The Marin Ski Club now has a base of its own in the high snow country.

Designed by two of its members and built by the skiers themselves from materials close at hand, the 2,600 square foot A-frame building is located on a 100x100-foot parcel of land acquired in 1958 along the south side of U.S. Highway 40 a quarter mile east of Soda Springs Lodge. The site is in the heart of the ski resort area and only a three-and-a-half-hour drive from Marin.

THE PLANS drawn by Walter Stevens and Charles Massen, who also supervised the work, provide for four dormitories accommodating 40 people, toilet facilities for each of the dorms, a kitchen in which several groups can cook at once; a dining room in which 12 persons can be served, a living room large enough for parties and dancing, and opening into the dining room with a fireplace, ample storage, a play or game room and work space.

Plans provide for the construction of the lodge in two stages. Stage one is now complete except for some interior "refinements." Stage two—the living room, which will add another 750 square feet of floor space and with the game room underneath—will probably be launched by the club members this summer.

But the first portion of the project is already receiving extensive usage.

Stevens and Massen set the building at an angle to the highway so as to take full advantage of the sun and to save trees. They also raised the main level of the lodge nine feet, thus meaning that there will be no digging of snow until after the drifts pass that nine-foot mark. The main level of the lodge is entered via a bridge.

CIRCULATION is such that members can get from any room to any other room without passing through a third room. An air lock was placed at the main entry. A trapdoor in the entry permits the passing of skis directly to the basement.

The water system was designed to drain easily at the close of weekends to minimize the freeze hazard.

The steep roof of the A-frame sheds snow and forms the walls as well as the roof, thus permitting the amateur builders to get the structure closed in a minimum length of time.

"We wanted to eliminate that 'living-in-a-cave' feeling so many lodges and cabins in the snow country present," the designers say. The high ceiling and slopes along with indirect lighting and generous natural light have achieved this by creating a spacious feeling, they believe.

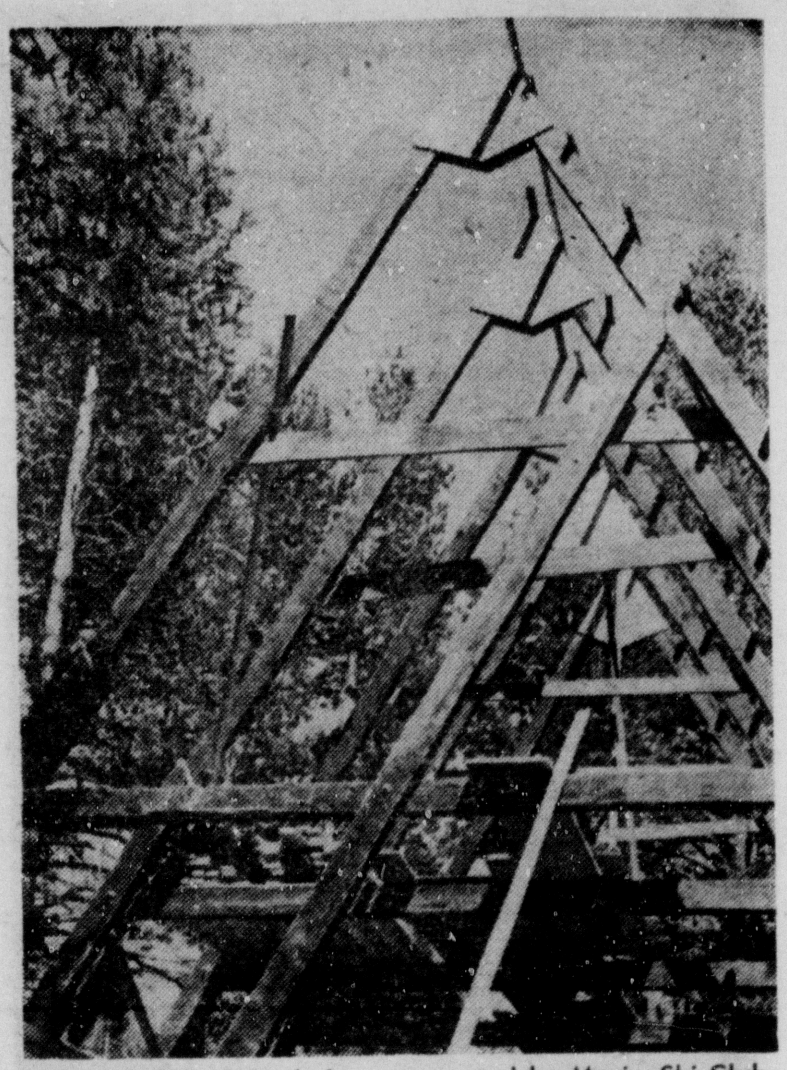

Stevens and Massen also like the A form because they feel it suggests the shape of mountains and trees.

The materials consisted largely of snowshed timbers plus some salvage lumber. Rough-finished wood was used, to minimize costs, and the use of masonry and concrete was held down for the same reason and because of a lack of skilled labor to handle those materials. The rough timbers, siding and decking and the plywood interior walls, however, offer a distinct advantage in easy maintenance. And also give the structure the rustic, informal appearance generally associated with ski lodges.

The Marin Ski Club dates back to 1940-41 when it was founded as the Marin Skate and Ski Club. It was, however, after World War II that the organization began really to grow and by 1947-48 it boasted 150 members.

AT THAT TIME the skiers were using the Hack Shack at Kingvale as their winter cabin. In 1949 they incorporated as the Marin Ski Club. In the years that followed the Marin skiers moved from facility to facility as their temporary base in the snow coun-

THE PLANS drawn by Walter Stevens and Charles Massen, who also supervised the work, provide for four dormitories accommodating 40 people, toilet facilities for each of the dorms, a kitchen in which several groups can cook at once; a dining room in which 12 persons can be served, a living room large enough for parties and dancing, and opening into the dining room with a fireplace, ample storage, a play or game room and work space.

Plans provide for the construction of the lodge in two stages. Stage one is now complete except for some interior "refinements." Stage two—the living room, which will add another 750 square feet of floor space and with the game room underneath—will probably be launched by the club members this summer.

But the first portion of the project is already receiving extensive usage.

Stevens and Massen set the building at an angle to the highway so as to take full advantage of the sun and to save trees. They also raised the main level of the lodge nine feet, thus meaning that there will be no digging of snow until after the drifts pass that nine-foot mark. The main level of the lodge is entered via a bridge.

CIRCULATION is such that members can get from any room to any other room without passing through a third room. An air lock was placed at the main entry. A trapdoor in the entry permits the passing of skis directly to the basement.

The water system was designed to drain easily at the close of weekends to minimize the freeze hazard.

The steep roof of the A-frame sheds snow and forms the walls as well as the roof, thus permitting the amateur builders to get the structure closed in a minimum length of time.

"We wanted to eliminate that 'living-in-a-cave' feeling so many lodges and cabins in the snow country present," the designers say. The high ceiling and slopes along with indirect lighting and generous natural light have achieved this by creating a spacious feeling, they believe.

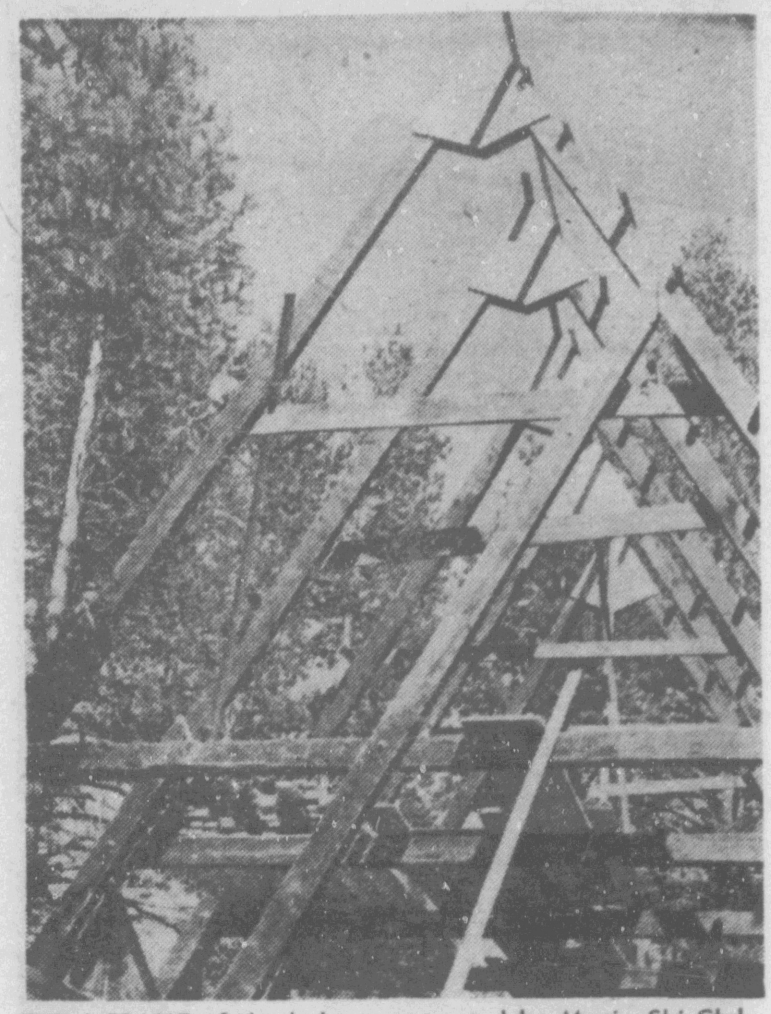

Stevens and Massen also like the A form because they feel it suggests the shape of mountains and trees.

The materials consisted largely of snowshed timbers plus some salvage lumber. Rough-finished wood was used, to minimize costs, and the use of masonry and concrete was held down for the same reason and because of a lack of skilled labor to handle those materials. The rough timbers, siding and decking and the plywood interior walls, however, offer a distinct advantage in easy maintenance. And also give the structure the rustic, informal appearance generally associated with ski lodges.

The Marin Ski Club dates back to 1940-41 when it was founded as the Marin Skate and Ski Club. It was, however, after World War II that the organization began really to grow and by 1947-48 it boasted 150 members.

AT THAT TIME the skiers were using the Hack Shack at Kingvale as their winter cabin. In 1949 they incorporated as the Marin Ski Club. In the years that followed the Marin skiers moved from facility to facility as their temporary base in the snow country, and in 1960 and 1961 were back at the Hack Shack.

But the wheels were already in motion to provide the organization with a permanent winter home of its own.

The lot east of Soda Springs Lodge had been purchased in the fall of 1958. In the summer of 1959 the property was surveyed, a septic tank dug and installed, and a leaching field started by the skiers.

During the winter of 1959-60 the design for the lodge building was drafted by Stevens and Massen and the working drawings completed. The club approved the plans and obtained a building permit. Members also voted to borrow $6,000 to build the lodge. And a start was made on collecting salvage materials.

Came the summer of 1960 and the project really moved into high gear. A base camp and tool shed were established. The septic tank and leaching field were completed. Trees were uprooted and the land prepared. Footings were dug and formed. Subgrade plumbing was installed.

Eight weeks of hard work netted more than 125 snowshed timbers for the project. The concrete footings were poured.

In all, that summer, 46 people donated 255 days of work at the site.

During the winter of 1960-61, working details for the project were completed and a work schedule mapped for the coming summer. A bill of materials was drawn up and members started searching anew for the needed supplies.

The work schedule for this past summer began June 17 and in the first three weekends the concrete work was finished. Work on the A-frames began July 1, and by July 15 the frames were in place. The roof work commenced July 15 and while the shingling was under way interior walls and floors were being installed below. Floors were finished Aug. 12. The roof was completed Aug. 26. And on that same day, the last touches were put on the interior walls.

By the end of September the building was completely enclosed. Heating, plumbing and electric systems are now complete. Only interior trim and finishes remain to be done under the first phase of the building project.

CLUB OFFICERS logged some 700 man-days of work over 20 weekends.

Designers-foremen Stevens and Massen both have backgrounds in architecture. Stevens attended Pomona College and University of California, maintains an office in Mill Valley, and has designed several residential and commercial buildings. Massen earned his degree in architecture from Healds College after studying there and at College of Marin. He spent four years in the service as a draftsman and surveyor He has worked with several architectural and engineering firms and for the past two and one-half years has been with San Rafael architect Felix Warburg.

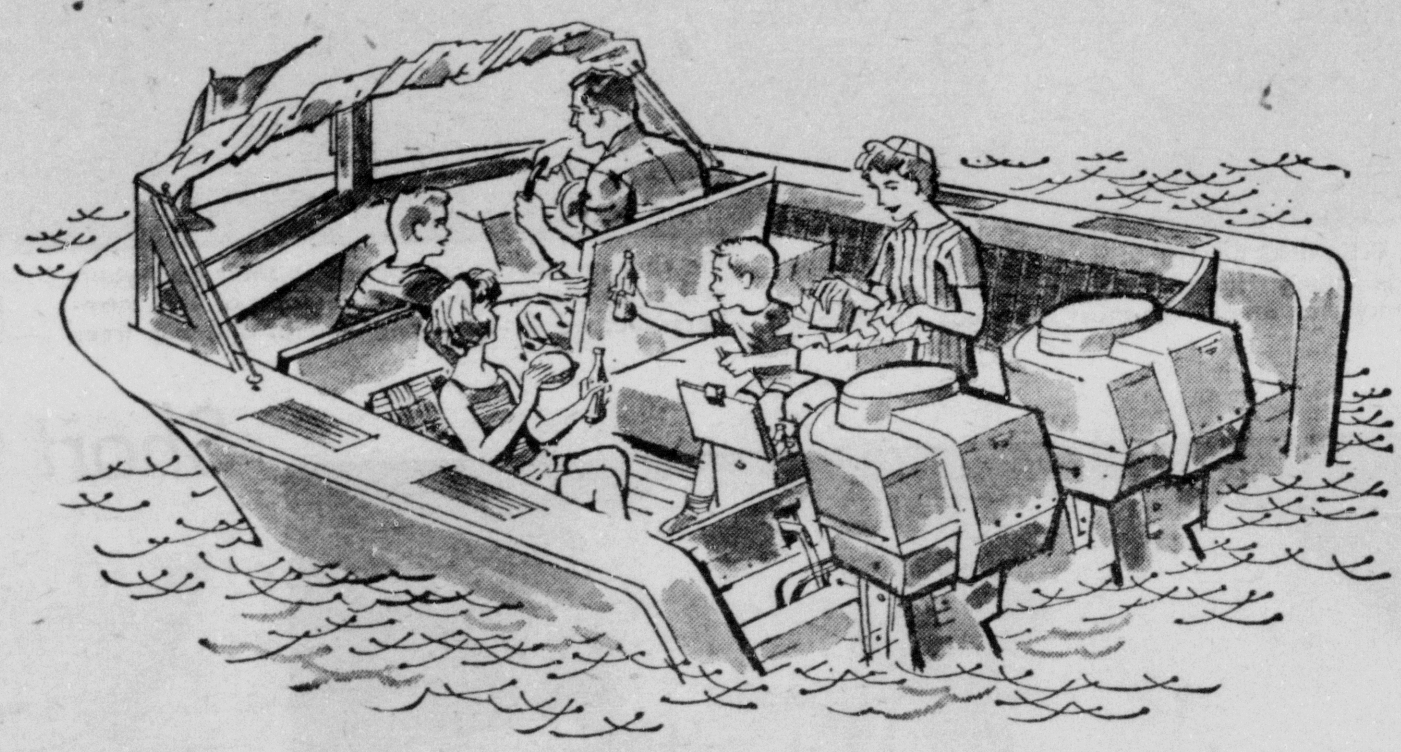

If the inclusion of the two experienced designers was a big plus for the ski club members in their determination to build themselves a winter home, the absence of skilled craftsmen among the membership was an obstacle of almost equal magnitude. But strong and willing backs, enthusiasm, and the close supervision provided by Stevens and Massen helped overcome that handicap. And the skiers are confident that experience gained during the initial phase of their building project will stand them in good stead this summer when they once again roll up their sleeves and tackle phase number two of their ambitious construction program.

In the meantime the skiers have put away their hammers and saws for a few months and are enjoying the snow—and the warmth of the new lodge which awaits them at the end of each day's outing.

SKI CLUB MEMBER Bob Dixon was one of the volunteers who contributed his weekends to the project of constructing the club's new lodge building in the snow country. Here he saws away on the sun deck. Other photos of the skiers-turned-builders can be seen on Pages M-12 and M-13. (Photo by Jim Kean)

THE CLEARING OF THE SITE for the Marin Ski Club lodge along Highway 40 in California's high country was one of the most strenuous challenges the club members encountered in their do-it-yourself construction project. Here four of the members succeed in uprooting one of the big trees which had to be cleared from the building site. Left to right, they are Lee Moon, Miles Pipsal, Al Lorente and Barry Evergettis.

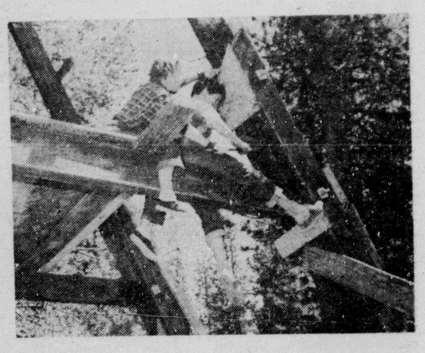

THE HEAVY WORK REQUIRED in clearing the site and constructing the new Marin Ski Club winter lodge, naturally, meant some hearty appetites on the part of the volunteer workers. Trying to keep those appetites satisfied was the job of some of the club's feminine members. The two preparing here to take hot food to the workers are Jeanne Nerviani, left, and Margot Glasner. # Ernest Bloch Composition Among '61's Best Albums

By JOHN SUNIER

Liturgical music for the Catholic Church has not been in short supply through the centuries, and Bach's great creations for the Lutheran Church have raised Protestant church music to a high pinnacle of achievement. However, Judaism has not one great large - scale choral - orchestral composition by a composer of any stature.

Had not, that is, until the completion in 1933 of Ernest Bloch's shatteringly beautiful "Sacred Service" or "Avodath Hakodesh." The text is drawn from the "Union Prayer-Book for Jewish Worship." Without thinking twice about the matter, Leonard Bernstein comes immediately to mind as suitable conductor of this music, and a splendid job he does on Columbia MS 6221 with the New York Philharmonic and Robert Merrill as cantor. The Choirs of the Metropolitan Synagogue and Community Church of New York provide the choral readings.

This album was chosen by Hi-Fi Stereo Review as one of the 13 best records of the year for 1961, and I agree in every respect.

WILLIAM SCHUMANN: Symphony No. 3 — Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic— Columbia MS 6245: It's quite discouraging how little music on records is available by the half-dozen or so top American contemporary composers. Aside from Copland, they all seem to be in hiding.

Only one other symphony of William Schumann's is available on record, No. 6, in a performance by the Philadelphia Orchestra (Columbia ML 4992). The "Symphony No. 3" is a large-scale work, bold in design and execution, with harmonies often atonal, but not disagreeable to the ear. The construction and form is clearly delineated by Bernstein and his Philharmonic men.

And what a fine idea the simple cover photo-portrait of the composer is! Enough of the reproductions of abstract paintings on the covers of albums of modern classical music. Simple photos of the composer and/or performer are so much more useful.

The magazine, published by Graphic Arts of Marin of Sausalito with John Sunier, also of Sausalito, as editor, will contain logs of the FM radio stations and television station KQED, reviews of recordings, a schedule of live jazz performances and articles on music and broadcasting.

It is to be issued monthly.

Giving The Creative Their Opportunity

This is the story of how an organization with an idea and a person with ability and drive came together. And what resulted.

The person is Suzanne Oberholtzer, charming 24-year-old wife of a young attorney and the mother of two children, Jon and Ellen Maie. They live in Marinwood with all the attendant problems of commuting, gardening and babysitting.

As in so many Marin homes, music is important in the Oberholtzer residence. There is a grand piano, stereo hi-fi, and a fine record collection. Dick Oberholtzer is a dedicated amateur listener and legal counsel for Marin's Festival of Performing Arts. Suzanne studied piano under Adolph Baller at Stanford University after her graduation from Dominican Upper School in San Rafael, always encouraged in her music by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Marrin.

In music-conscious Marin, such a background is far from unusual. Far less common, however, is Suzanne's other musical talent — as a composer. Since her university days when she studied composition, she has felt drawn to it. But, like so many young composers, she also felt: "Really, what's the use? It's impossible to get performed." And, generally speaking, it is.

THIS IS WHERE the organization with an idea enters the picture. The organization is the Winifred Baker Chorale, whose director, Winifred Baker, happens to believe that it is important that unknown composers be given an opportunity to have their works performed.

Last year the chorale commissioned a short cantata, "Therefore with Angels," a setting by Berkeley's Robert Kelligar of San Rafael poetess Margaret Albanese's poem. Desirable as the practice may be, the production of new compositions is expensive and time-consuming, and it appeared that the chorale would have to wait until 1963 for its next premiere work.

Then one evening, Suzanne, having heard that the Winifred Baker Boys' Chorus was singing again this season, diffidently remarked: "I have a few songs for boys I've set to old folk rhymes." Not too optimistic but always hopeful, Mrs. Baker politely asked: "May I see them?"

The next day the phone rang early in the Oberholtzer residence. It was Winifred Baker and she said: "These are wonderful. May we do them at our next concert? And what else are you working on?"

Not surprisingly, for talent tends to keep working, it developed that there were more songs and other music, as well as a cello sonata, not yet completed but hopefully scheduled for eventual performance in the Festival of Performing Arts.

As a result of all this, next Saturday, when the Winifred Baker Chorale and Boys' Chorus presents its first concert of 1962 in Angelico Hall, Dominican College, San Rafael, at 8 p.m., Suzanne Oberholtzer's cycle of songs for boys' chorus will be a featured part of a program that also includes Beethoven's "Choral Fantasia" and Britten's "St. Nicolas."

SHE WON'T HEAR it from the audience, however . . . She'll hear it from the wings because she also happens to be a member of the first alto section of the chorale. Perhaps in 1963, though, she can sit in the audience at the Festival of Performing Arts and listen to her cello sonata receiving its first performance.

Tremendously pleased at the discovery of this unexpected talent in her choral group, Mrs. Baker emphasizes that her intent is to continue to give more and more new artists an opportunity to have their works performed.

"This has been a problem for musicians for centuries," she points out. "But here in Marin, with organizations such as the Festival of Performing Arts planning for new works as soon as possible, with the Sausalito Little Theater presenting six new one-act plays by six different playwrights, with our group having the libretto for a full-scale cantata on hand as soon as we can commission the composer, there is a tremendous opportunity for the young creative person to find an audience for his or her talents."

THE INTENTIONS OF little Ellen Maie and Jon Oberholtzer are good, but their fervor for the piano brings a temporary halt to the music composition work of their mother, Mrs. Suzanne Oberholtzer. She will be back at it in a moment, however, putting the finishing touches upon a group of songs to be performed next Saturday night by the Winifred Baker Boys' Chorus. (Photo by Philip J. Planert)

Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

By Bert Brown, Marin Cleaners of San Rafael, Bel Aire & Fairfax, GL 4-4792

"CAN MY SILK-WOOL DRESS BE DRYCLEANED?"

The majority of combination silk and wool garments will dryclean beautifully; however, some do not wear or clean well. The construction of the fabric and the yarns, themselves, are the cause of dissatisfaction with these garments, not drycleaning.

Fine, low twist silkyarns are woven lengthwise while the loosely twisted wool yarns are in the cross-wise direction. Silk yarns break at points of strain because of their low strength. These also work to the surface where the garment is folded or creased and subject to wear. In some cases the wool yarn works to the surface and "pills."

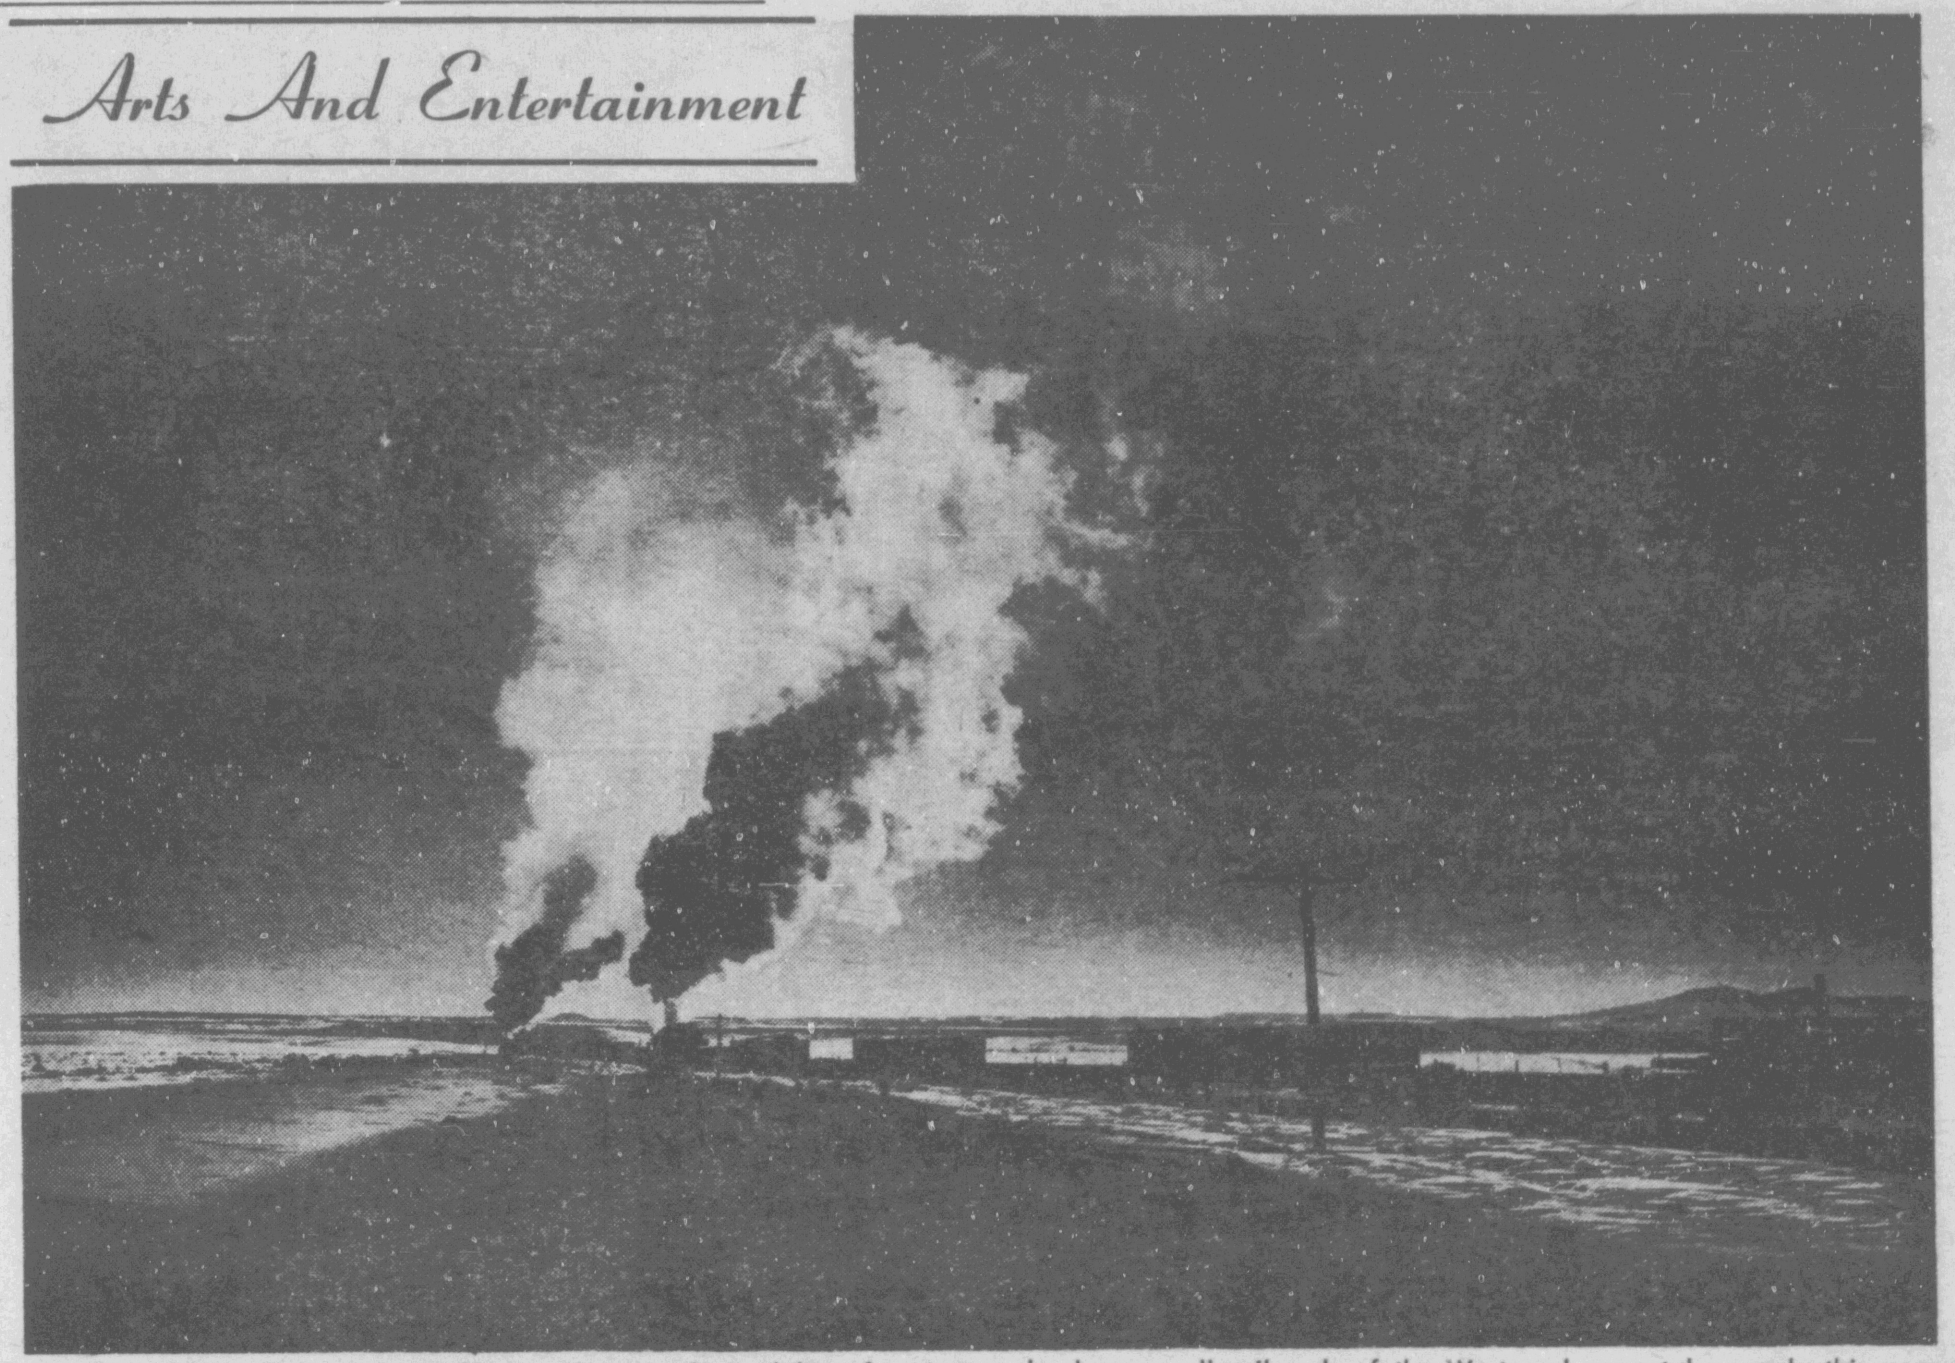

At times these garments will shrink depending upon the construction and the manufacturer. It is impossible to tell whether a silk-wool combination will shrink objectionably.

When buying a silk-wool combination fabric choose a reliable manufacturer. Be certain you have deep finished seams because these fabrics fray excessively. Bound buttonholes in this type fabric may fray, also. If the garment fits too tightly, remember that seams or darts may separate at the line of stitching. Select a garment design that permits free movement because strain causes these yarns to break.

Yes, your silk-wool garment will dryclean perfectly and wear well, in most cases. Where it does not, the fabric construction is usually at fault.

The magazine, published by Graphic Arts of Marin of Sausalito with John Sunier, also of Sausalito, as editor, will contain logs of the FM radio stations and television station KQED, reviews of recordings, a schedule of live jazz performances and articles on music and broadcasting.

It is to be issued monthly.

"In bringing classical music to more Americans than ever before, through live performances, high fidelity records, and school programs, the U.S. has opened a vast new era of cultural enrichment and an opportunity to assume world leadership in music" according to four prominent Americans. At a recent symposium in New York, opera star Rise Stevens; vice president-general manager of RCA Victor Record Company and head of the Record Industry Association, Mr. George Marek; Dean of the School of Music University of Southern California Dr. R. Kendall; and Congressman Frank Thompson, Jr. chairman of the House Select Subcommittee on Education; with Mr. H. T. Harwood, a Shure executive, acting as moderator discussed some very interesting aspects on "America's Renaissance in Music."

It was brought out that Americans were spending more for music than for sports — a total of $1\frac{1}{2}$ billion annually. Americans support more symphony orchestras — almost 1,200 — than the rest of the world combined, and opera, ballet and concert ticket sales are the highest in history. Rise Stevens emphasized the overwhelming change in American tastes during the fifties. Whereas the Europeans have regarded us as cultural adolescents who know the price of everything and the value of nothing, the image is changing. The average American is now more familiar with the classical performing arts. "Van Cliburn's fans," she said, "now compare in number with those of Elvis Presley."

It was brought out that this year about 1,200 AM and FM radio stations are programming more than 13,000 hours of concert music each week.

Dr. Kendall described how broad new opportunities for developing musical appreciation and skills have opened up for today's average child. This, he pointed out, was in sharp contrast to Europe, where only the very talented children are given adequate attention.

We at Catania Sound can't help but feel that we have helped this Renaissance in Music by providing good music systems for the homes in Marin.

Sausalito's Alta Mira On View Dining List

VIEWS TO DINE BY by Jerome E. Klein, View Books Inc., 283 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

For his "the stories of panoramic restaurants around the world," public relations man Klein has compiled a list of 626 eating establishments in 51 countries on five continents which he feels offer exceptional views along with their cuisine.

Of these, 248 are accompanied by photographs showing just what the diner will be feasting his eyes upon while feeding the inner man. Brief informational sketches accompany all the listings. And for many, there is greater detail including scores of interesting anecdotes and vignettes.

As might be expected, many of the restaurants chosen have lofty locales—atop buildings, hotels, mountains, cliffs, monuments. Others are located in charming gardens or courtyards or adjacent to world famous scenic spots.

The United States is not overlooked. And among the limited number of American restaurants included is one from Marin—Sausalito's Alta Mira Hotel and its Terrace Dining Room with its sweeping view of San Francisco, the bay, the bridge and Sausalito itself.

Says Klein: "I find Sausalito a lovely place — it is a combination of many wonderful places—of the fishing cove of Portofino and of a sleepy New England village, near Portland, Maine . . ."

San Francisco places listed include Cliff House, Franciscan Restaurant, Rolf's, Starlite Roof of the Hotel Sir Francis Drake, Steacy's Round House and, one of the very few cocktail lounges to make the grade, the Top of the Mark.

Outside the USA, there are restaurants in ancient castles, an Irish establishment that boasts a ghost, many eating places where events of great historic significance occurred, restaurants that revolve, English pubs, eating facilities aboard excursion boats, and much more.

Two brief criticisms: While the photographs are beautiful, space considerations have sometimes limited their size to such an extent that the beauty they depict cannot be fully appreciated by the viewer. And while in many instances Klein does include some information on cuisine as well as views, in a number of other cases the quality and specialties of the food and service are totally overlooked. And no matter how magnificent the view, a traveler, we are sure, would also want to have some advance assurance that the recommended establishment offers something with special appeal to the taste buds as well as the eyes.

The book, nevertheless, makes for interesting reading. It should be of real service to the person who travels much, and who enjoys eating in surroundings of exceptional beauty.

HOW TO BUILD FIBERGLASS BOATS by Charles Bell, Coward-McCann Inc., 244 pages, $7.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The development of fiberglass has, according to Charles F. Chapman, editor of Motor Boating Magazine, made it possible for even the amateur to fabricate a superior boat—providing he is aided by expert advice. And, the editor adds, Charles Bell, boat designer and builder, is just the man to go to for that advice.

Bell, however, makes it unnecessary for builders to come to him. In this book he provides step-by-step directions on how to build 15 different kinds of boats ranging from a 10-foot dinghy to a 29-foot cruiser.

The first half of his book is devoted to a general discussion of the use of reinforced plastics in small boat building plus an analysis of several different building methods and some instruction on repairs and maintenance.

The last half of the book then includes the directions for building such boats as a Mohawk canoe, the Zephyr runabout, the Minuteman catamaran, the Seafoam sports boat, a River Queen houseboat, the Discoverer cruiser, a racing sloop, and others. Thrown in as a "bonus" are instructions for building "foam boats" (for walking on water) and an aquacycle. There is a section telling you where to buy needed materials and a glossary of boatbuilding terms.

Author Bell is responsible for his own illustrations. And people who know their boats tell us the book is extremely practical, complete and helpful.

There's also interesting background and anecdotes about sourdough. It's great fun to read. The Sierra Nevada range is much more than a huge geographical fact. Its rugged slopes defied the pioneers, then gave them gold; its snows buried the railroad builders, then gave California a whole new industry — winter sports; its waters wreaked havoc by flood, and made the desert bloom.

W. Storrs Lee, a Vermonter transplanted to Berkeley, and a long time lover of mountains who immortalized those of his home state in "The Green Mountains of Vermont," brings to the monumental task of chronicling the Sierra the skills commensurate with the job.

"The Sierra" is geography with gusto, history with humor, colorful description, and a dash of folklore. The many roles played by the Sierra in California's history are skillfully blended in a manner somewhat reminiscent of Paul I. Wellman's saga of the cattle country, "The Trampling Herd."

This is a book worthy of the mountains it chronicles, and worthy of the bookshelf of any literate Californian.

Giving The Creative Their Opportunity

This is the story of how an organization with an idea and a person with ability and drive came together. And what resulted.

The person is Suzanne Oberholtzer, charming 24-year-old wife of a young attorney and the mother of two children, Jon and Ellen Maie. They live in Marinwood with all the attendant problems of commuting, gardening and babysitting.

As in so many Marin homes, music is important in the Oberholtzer residence. There is a grand piano, stereo hi-fi, and a fine record collection. Dick Oberholtzer is a dedicated amateur listener and legal counsel for Marin's Festival of Performing Arts. Suzanne studied piano under Adolph Baller at Stanford University after her graduation from Dominican Upper School in San Rafael, always encouraged in her music by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Marrin.

In music-conscious Marin, such a background is far from unusual. Far less common, however, is Suzanne's other musical talent — as a composer. Since her university days when she studied composition, she has felt drawn to it. But, like so many young composers, she also felt: "Really, what's the use? It's impossible to get performed." And, generally speaking, it is.

THIS IS WHERE the organization with an idea enters the picture. The organization is the Winifred Baker Chorale, whose director, Winifred Baker, happens to believe that it is important that unknown composers be given an opportunity to have their works performed.

Last year the chorale commissioned a short cantata, "Therefore with Angels," a setting by Berkeley's Robert Kelligar of San Rafael poetess Margaret Albanese's poem. Desirable as the practice may be, the production of new compositions is expensive and time-consuming, and it appeared that the chorale would have to wait until 1963 for its next premiere work.

Then one evening, Suzanne, having heard that the Winifred Baker Boys' Chorus was singing again this season, diffidently remarked: "I have a few songs for boys I've set to old folk rhymes." Not too optimistic but always hopeful, Mrs. Baker politely asked: "May I see them?"

The next day the phone rang early in the Oberholtzer residence. It was Winifred Baker and she said: "These are wonderful. May we do them at our next concert? And what else are you working on?"

Not surprisingly, for talent tends to keep working, it developed that there were more songs and other music, as well as a cello sonata, not yet completed but hopefully scheduled for eventual performance in the Festival of Performing Arts.

As a result of all this, next Saturday, when the Winifred Baker Chorale and Boys' Chorus presents its first concert of 1962 in Angelico Hall, Dominican College, San Rafael, at 8 p.m., Suzanne Oberholtzer's cycle of songs for boys' chorus will be a featured part of a program that also includes Beethoven's "Choral Fantasia" and Britten's "St. Nicolas."

SHE WON'T HEAR it from the audience, however . . . She'll hear it from the wings because she also happens to be a member of the first alto section of the chorale. Perhaps in 1963, though, she can sit in the audience at the Festival of Performing Arts and listen to her cello sonata receiving its first performance.

Tremendously pleased at the discovery of this unexpected talent in her choral group, Mrs. Baker emphasizes that her intent is to continue to give more and more new artists an opportunity to have their works performed.

"This has been a problem for musicians for centuries," she points out. "But here in Marin, with organizations such as the Festival of Performing Arts planning for new works as soon as possible, with the Sausalito Little Theater presenting six new one-act plays by six different playwrights, with our group having the libretto for a full-scale cantata on hand as soon as we can commission the composer, there is a tremendous opportunity for the young creative person to find an audience for his or her talents."

THE INTENTIONS OF little Ellen Maie and Jon Oberholtzer are good, but their fervor for the piano brings a temporary halt to the music composition work of their mother, Mrs. Suzanne Oberholtzer. She will be back at it in a moment, however, putting the finishing touches upon a group of songs to be performed next Saturday night by the Winifred Baker Boys' Chorus. (Photo by Philip J. Planert)

"CAN MY SILK-WOOL DRESS BE DRYCLEANED?"

The majority of combination silk and wool garments will dryclean beautifully; however, some do not wear or clean well. The construction of the fabric and the yarns, themselves, are the cause of dissatisfaction with these garments, not drycleaning.

Fine, low twist silkyarns are woven lengthwise while the loosely twisted wool yarns are in the cross-wise direction. Silk yarns break at points of strain because of their low strength. These also work to the surface where the garment is folded or creased and subject to wear. In some cases the wool yarn works to the surface and "pills."

At times these garments will shrink depending upon the construction and the manufacturer. It is impossible to tell whether a silk-wool combination will shrink objectionably.

When buying a silk-wool combination fabric choose a reliable manufacturer. Be certain you have deep finished seams because these fabrics fray excessively. Bound buttonholes in this type fabric may fray, also. If the garment fits too tightly, remember that seams or darts may separate at the line of stitching. Select a garment design that permits free movement because strain causes these yarns to break.

Yes, your silk-wool garment will dryclean perfectly and wear well, in most cases. Where it does not, the fabric construction is usually at fault.

You Never Know When Spring Will Show Up In Marin County

It's been said that the only trouble with Marin's spring is that you never know when it starts. Many spring-blooming bulbs show color in late January and February.

Camellias bloom right through winter and some Azaleas follow suit. Annuals such as Pansy and Primula are as prevalent in February as they are in March or April.

But who's to complain? Isn't this just like saying that it's almost always spring in California—or that our winter is spring-like in its relative mildness? This is hardly trouble as we see it.

Still and all, there's something nice about watching plants go dormant and then blossom forth almost overnight with color on bare branches. And even if they do this in mid-winter hereabouts, it's suddenly spring when they come out.

Consider, then, planting some of the better deciduous shrubs and enjoying their annual change. Your rewards will be great when they break their winter rest.

Flowering quinces, for instance, are lovely heralds of spring, breaking bloom early in the new year. Their delicacy is to be cherished, both in the garden and in the house where cut branches are used as decoration. Pink, red, white, coral and variations thereof in double and single blossoms are available.

For those who haven't tried it, we recommend the "beauty bush" for its long, arching branches of delicate pink blooms in spring. This little-known shrub is a real winner when it's well established — not far different than the more familiar Weigela, except blooms are smaller, more delicate and more profuse. Plant both Weigela and beauty bush for a good show.

Plant, also, the delicate yellow sprays of "golden bells" and the traditional beauty of dogwood—not our native variety, which is best in its native foothills, but Eastern dogwood, which does well in Marin. And lastly, by all means, plant the prolific deciduous magnolias. They really deserve a story by themselves, for there just aren't any showier spring shrubs to be found —not anywhere. If that seems a strong recommendation, be assured that it is.

Now's The Time To Sharpen Shears And Start Pruning

If you would start your garden in good order as the new year begins, sharpen your shears and start pruning. Deciduous fruit trees, grapes, berries, roses and certain other flowering shrubs will need pruning before winter ends, and the sooner you start, the better.

There are many shrubs that do not need pruning, of course, and nurserymen warn against any indiscriminate hacking. A chat on pruning theory and schedules with a Marin nurseryman will benefit many an inexperienced gardener in this respect.

Briefly, we do not prune spring flowering deciduous shrubs and trees until after bloom for the simple reason that we don't want to rob ourselves of their beauty. Nor do we prune most evergreens in winter for the reason that pruning is liable to induce new growth in these non-dormant species and new growth is susceptible to frost.

We do prune summer-flowering shrubs such as roses and hydrangeas which will bloom on the new growth they produce next spring. We prune fruit trees to help prevent overcropping and to improve quality of the fruit. We prune grapes for the same reason and berries because the canes on which they bore fruit this year will not be productive again and should be removed. And we prune deciduous shade trees now if there is any dead wood to remove, if the form needs improving or if the trunk needs strengthening.

It is impossible here to complete the "do prune" and "do not prune" list so as to cover all plants. But a good rule of thumb is — when in doubt, consult an expert such as your nurseryman. And for larger scale tree pruning jobs, it is usually wise to employ the services of a professional tree trimmer.

Gift Trees Can Prove Too Costly

If a friend offers you a young shade tree "just for the digging," look it over before you accept. You may find it's no bargain.

Have the tree identified as to species; it may be a variety that is not desirable for home landscaping. Check it for shape and condition. It should have a straight stem with well-formed branches, and be free of pests and injuries.

Moving the tree may be a larger operation than you anticipate. Usually "gift" trees are too large to be transplanted successfully without a ball of earth around the roots. This entails careful digging and wrapping the ball in burlap.

Earth is heavy. The ball required in moving a tree that is four inches in trunk diameter—a relative small tree —will weigh about one-half ton, according to planting specifications recommended by the National Arborist Assn. This much weight can't be handled without special equipment.

All things considered, if you want a tree you might be wise to buy it from a reputable firm. Then you will be assured of a healthy tree and a good planting job.

The Ground Beneath Tree Poses Special Planting Problems

There is much to be gained from properly planting the ground beneath a tree. But many Marin gardeners overlook this fact.

Trees quite often are let to create such dense shade at their bases that nothing really grows well. Indeed, nothing is even planted.

There is another problem in planting under a tree that shade has nothing to do with. Trees have greedy roots systems which deplete the soil of nutrients. And even when the branches are pruned to admit light, the planting under them is apt to suffer from malnutrition.

Both these facts should be considered when you try to create anything of beauty at a tree's base. Allow for them and you can convert an often wasted space into a featured attraction in your garden.

The first problem, of course, can be eliminated with the proper use of pruning shears and saw. If the tree is of great size, however, you'd best let a professional handle the job. The ground is a long way down when you are trying to use a saw in the uppermost branches of a large tree.

To allow for a tree's voracious roots, it is often advisable to raise the soil slightly in a bed around the base of the trunk. Under oaks, however, be sure you leave air space between trunk and raised bed so that dirt won't encourage crown rot. Extra food and water are needed, too — the amount depending on the size of the tree.

It is much easier to plan your tree-ground relationship when you plant the tree. Keep in mind that such attractive specimens as the white birch are enhanced by a base planting of ornamentals and evergreens, that a flowering cherry or some other star performer in spring is extra special when it blooms over a blooming azalea or bulb bed, that a conifer can be nicely complemented with a "woodsy" planting such as dwarf juniper or azaleas at its base.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- ✔ Prune roses, grapes, berries and fruit trees. Wait until next month to prune Fuchsias.
- ✔ Plant the deciduous Magnolias now for a sudden burst of bloom when weather starts to warm up.
- ✔ Gladiolus may be planted any time between now and early summer. Make several plantings.
- ✔ Lawns should be cut shorter in winter than in summer. Mow them preferably when the grass is dry.
- ✔ Shade trees should be planted now, not later when you think of their shade. Bareroot stock is easier to handle and will make a fast start in the spring when it gets warmer.

A Hillside Site Has Its Advantages

The extremely steep hillside site which Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morrison chose for their new home on Ivy Drive in Ross posed some special problems.

In fact, so small was the amount of available level space, that the Morrisons had to obtain a permit to locate their home closer to the street than was normally permissible.

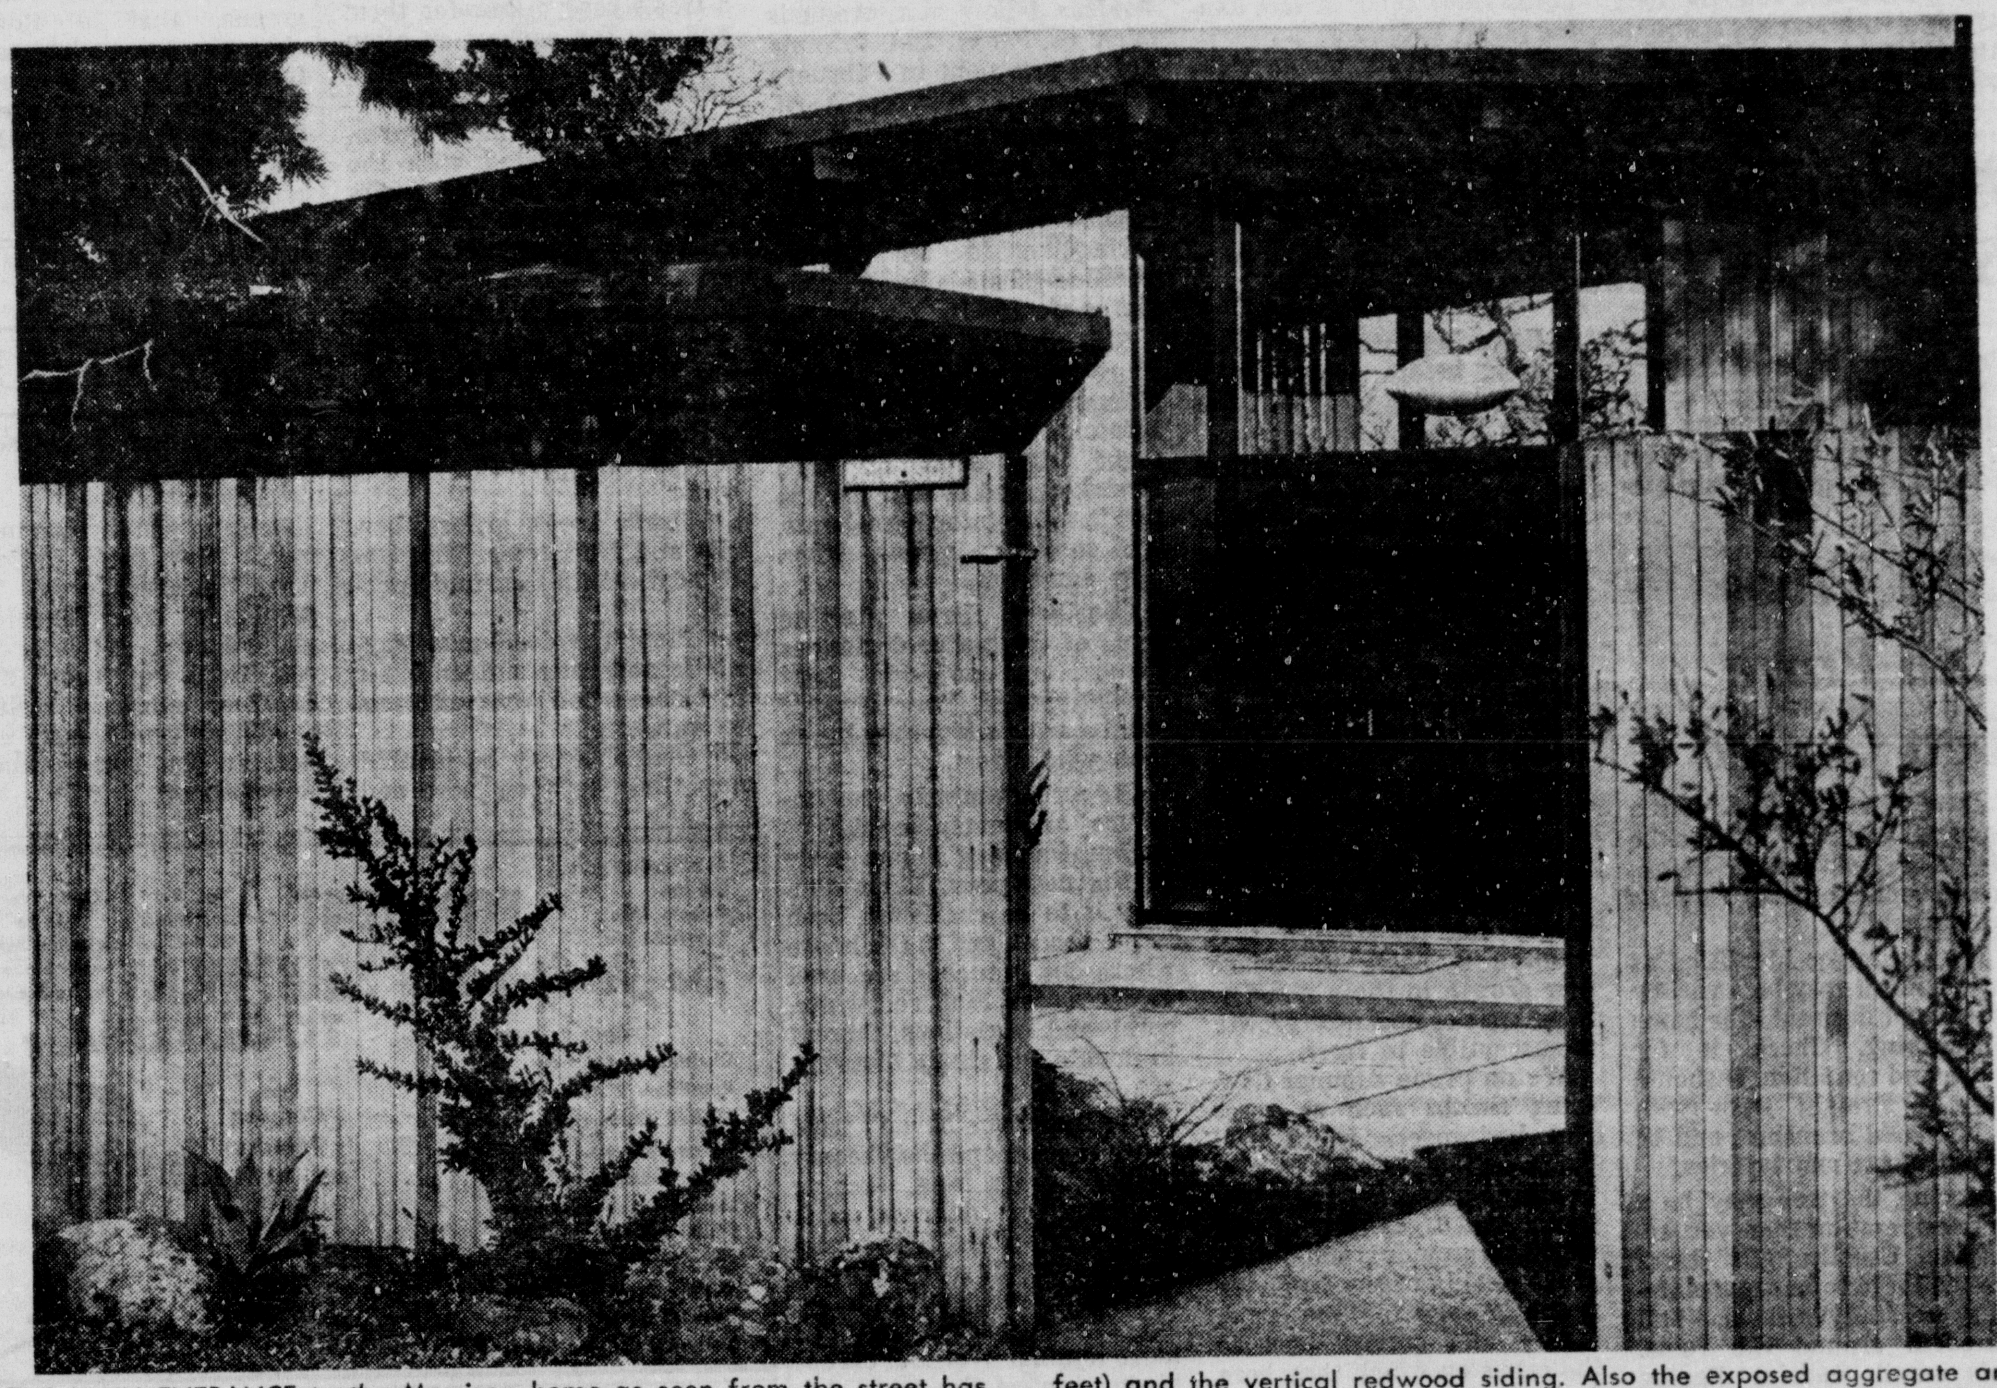

But the site also offered some distinct advantages. One of these was the fantastic view. Another was the attractive oak and gum trees standing on the property.

Architects Wagstaff and McDonald took care to take full advantage of the trees in the planning of the contemporary redwood home. As a result all were saved. And all serve to frame the house and give it a look of belonging to its site.

The extensive use of glass also insured the Morrisons the fullest advantage from their view. They look down upon wooded scenery and—in the background — the San Francisco Theological Seminary campus.

Marin Living

THE PFITZER JUNIPER owes its popularity to its versatility. It can be used in foundation, entrance, specimen and bank plantings, and is highly adaptable to a wide range of sun-shade conditions and climatic conditions. Foliage is feathery and fast-growing. Small inset shows you what this "jack-of-all-trades" will look like at your nurseyman's. (California Assn. of Nurseymen photo)

The Ground Beneath Tree Poses Special Planting Problems

There is much to be gained from properly planting the ground beneath a tree. But many Marin gardeners overlook this fact.

Trees quite often are let to create such dense shade at their bases that nothing really grows well. Indeed, nothing is even planted.

There is another problem in planting under a tree that shade has nothing to do with. Trees have greedy roots systems which deplete the soil of nutrients. And even when the branches are pruned to admit light, the planting under them is apt to suffer from malnutrition.

Both these facts should be considered when you try to create anything of beauty at a tree's base. Allow for them and you can convert an often wasted space into a featured attraction in your garden.

The first problem, of course, can be eliminated with the proper use of pruning shears and saw. If the tree is of great size, however, you'd best let a professional handle the job. The ground is a long way down when you are trying to use a saw in the uppermost branches of a large tree.

To allow for a tree's voracious roots, it is often advisable to raise the soil slightly in a bed around the base of the trunk. Under oaks, however, be sure you leave air space between trunk and raised bed so that dirt won't encourage crown rot. Extra food and water are needed, too — the amount depending on the size of the tree.

It is much easier to plan your tree-ground relationship when you plant the tree. Keep in mind that such attractive specimens as the white birch are enhanced by a base planting of ornamentals and evergreens, that a flowering cherry or some other star performer in spring is extra special when it blooms over a blooming azalea or bulb bed, that a conifer can be nicely complemented with a "woodsy" planting such as dwarf juniper or azaleas at its base.

You Never Know When Spring Will Show Up In Marin County

It's been said that the only trouble with Marin's spring is that you never know when it starts. Many spring-blooming bulbs show color in late January and February.

Camellias bloom right through winter and some Azaleas follow suit. Annuals such as Pansy and Primula are as prevalent in February as they are in March or April.

But who's to complain? Isn't this just like saying that it's almost always spring in California—or that our winter is spring-like in its relative mildness? This is hardly trouble as we see it.

Still and all, there's something nice about watching plants go dormant and then blossom forth almost overnight with color on bare branches. And even if they do this in mid-winter hereabouts, it's suddenly spring when they come out.

Consider, then, planting some of the better deciduous shrubs and enjoying their annual change. Your rewards will be great when they break their winter rest.

Flowering quinces, for instance, are lovely heralds of spring, breaking bloom early in the new year. Their delicacy is to be cherished, both in the garden and in the house where cut branches are used as decoration. Pink, red, white, coral and variations thereof in double and single blossoms are available.

For those who haven't tried it, we recommend the "beauty bush" for its long, arching branches of delicate pink blooms in spring. This little-known shrub is a real winner when it's well established — not far different than the more familiar Weigela, except blooms are smaller, more delicate and more profuse. Plant both Weigela and beauty bush for a good show.

Plant, also, the delicate yellow sprays of "golden bells" and the traditional beauty of dogwood—not our native variety, which is best in its native foothills, but Eastern dogwood, which does well in Marin. And lastly, by all means, plant the prolific deciduous magnolias. They really deserve a story by themselves, for there just aren't any showier spring shrubs to be found —not anywhere. If that seems a strong recommendation, be assured that it is.

Now's The Time To Sharpen Shears And Start Pruning

If you would start your garden in good order as the new year begins, sharpen your shears and start pruning. Deciduous fruit trees, grapes, berries, roses and certain other flowering shrubs will need pruning before winter ends, and the sooner you start, the better.

There are many shrubs that do not need pruning, of course, and nurserymen warn against any indiscriminate hacking. A chat on pruning theory and schedules with a Marin nurseryman will benefit many an inexperienced gardener in this respect.

Briefly, we do not prune spring flowering deciduous shrubs and trees until after bloom for the simple reason that we don't want to rob ourselves of their beauty. Nor do we prune most evergreens in winter for the reason that pruning is liable to induce new growth in these non-dormant species and new growth is susceptible to frost.

We do prune summer-flowering shrubs such as roses and hydrangeas which will bloom on the new growth they produce next spring. We prune fruit trees to help prevent overcropping and to improve quality of the fruit. We prune grapes for the same reason and berries because the canes on which they bore fruit this year will not be productive again and should be removed. And we prune deciduous shade trees now if there is any dead wood to remove, if the form needs improving or if the trunk needs strengthening.

It is impossible here to complete the "do prune" and "do not prune" list so as to cover all plants. But a good rule of thumb is — when in doubt, consult an expert such as your nurseryman. And for larger scale tree pruning jobs, it is usually wise to employ the services of a professional tree trimmer.

Gift Trees Can Prove Too Costly

If a friend offers you a young shade tree "just for the digging," look it over before you accept. You may find it's no bargain.

Have the tree identified as to species; it may be a variety that is not desirable for home landscaping. Check it for shape and condition. It should have a straight stem with well-formed branches, and be free of pests and injuries.

Moving the tree may be a larger operation than you anticipate. Usually "gift" trees are too large to be transplanted successfully without a ball of earth around the roots. This entails careful digging and wrapping the ball in burlap.

Earth is heavy. The ball required in moving a tree that is four inches in trunk diameter—a relative small tree —will weigh about one-half ton, according to planting specifications recommended by the National Arborist Assn. This much weight can't be handled without special equipment.

All things considered, if you want a tree you might be wise to buy it from a reputable firm. Then you will be assured of a healthy tree and a good planting job.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Prune roses, grapes, berries and fruit trees. Wait until next month to prune Fuchsias.
- Plant the deciduous Magnolias now for a sudden burst of bloom when weather starts to warm up.
- Gladiolus may be planted any time between now and early summer. Make several plantings.
- Lawns should be cut shorter in winter than in summer. Mow them preferably when the grass is dry.
- Shade trees should be planted now, not later when you think of their shade. Bareroot stock is easier to handle and will make a fast start in the spring when it gets warmer.

A Hillside Site Has Its Advantages

The extremely steep hillside site which Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morrison chose for their new home on Ivy Drive in Ross posed some special problems.

In fact, so small was the amount of available level space, that the Morrisons had to obtain a permit to locate their home closer to the street than was normally permissible.

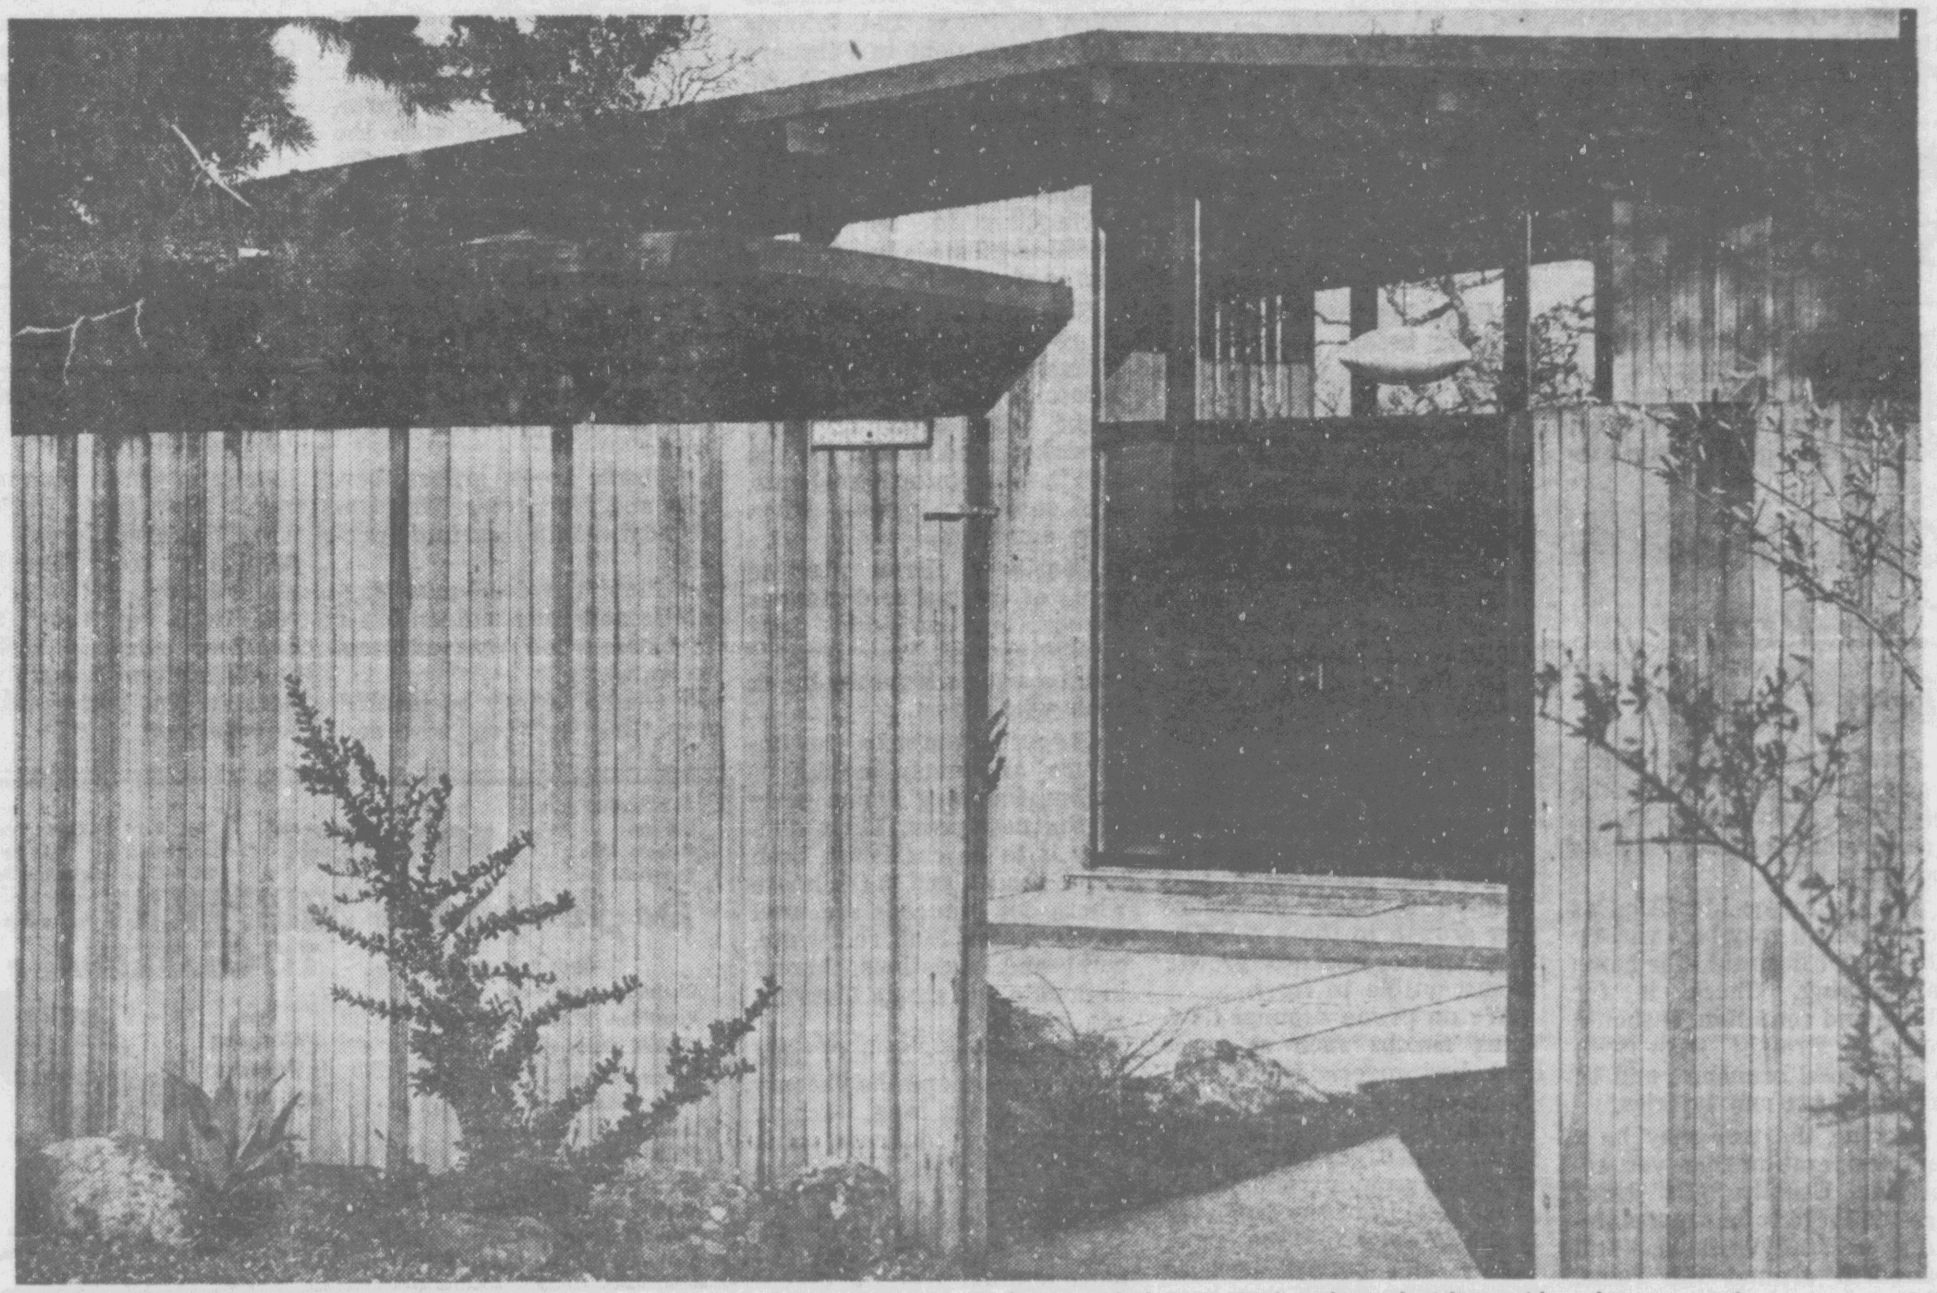

But the site also offered some distinct advantages. One of these was the fantastic view. Another was the attractive oak and gum trees standing on the property.

Architects Wagstaff and McDonald took care to take full advantage of the trees in the planning of the contemporary redwood home. As a result all were saved. And all serve to frame the house and give it a look of belonging to its site.

The extensive use of glass also insured the Morrisons the fullest advantage from their view. They look down upon wooded scenery and—in the background — the San Francisco Theological Seminary campus.

NO, THAT'S NOT a merry Oldsmobile. It's a 1910 Flanders, and it will be the center of attention in "The Donna Reed Show" episode on KGO next Thursday at 8 p.m. Donna and her TV husband, Carl Betz, will steer the relic of the early auto age through a series of misadventures.

Here's a bedroom destined to be at home in the most sophisticated rooms. The finish is something new, antiqued with tiny flecks, hand glazed to a velvety, warm glow, soft as candle light, and accented with touches of gold. Tops are of walnut veneers, carefully selected for beauty of grain, and precisely matched in a handsome parquet. Prices are very modest for furniture of this high quality. Come see Avanti soon.
